1,000 CHECKED —ONE CAUGHT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Only one impaired driver was picked up by police New Year's Eve although police estimated they checked more than 1,000 cars at roadblocks.

One traffic official described it as the quietest holiday weekend in his memory.

Woman, 81, Victim of Car Crash

Accidents Kill 14 in Province

An 81-year-old Saanich woman died in hospital early Monday, victim of a highway mishap at Cadboro Bay Road and Lauder Avenue on Friday night.

Mrs. E. Page, 2675 Arbutus, was the Island's second traffic victim of the New Year's holiday weekend. Her death was listed as the 14th traffic fatality in Greater Victoria in 1955, the fifth in December.

Mrs. Page was taken to hospital from her home about five hours after a car driven by her husband bounced off a small culvert and went into the ditch while turning on to Lauder at 5.15 p.m., Dec. 30. Police reported Mrs. Page's head hit the windshield.

A coroner's inquest will be held in McCall Bros. funeral home at 11.30 a.m. Wednesday.

Holiday weekend accidents killed 14 British Columbians, according to The Canadian Press and British United Press compilations.

Traffic accidents and fires each caused four deaths, while one man died from a heart attack caused by excitement at a fire. Two persons died of asphyxiation, an infant succumbed to domestic gas poisoning, and one man drowned.

The toll compared with 12 persons killed violently in British Columbia during the Christmas holiday weekend.

Traffic victims, in addition to Mrs. Page, were:

HITS TRUCK

Mrs. Elsie Pohto, 25, killed in a car-truck crash at Alert Bay, Saturday night. Five others were hospitalized from injuries received when the car ran into a parked truck on the town's main street.

Conrad Elyolfson, 19, Port Moody, was killed early Sunday when the car in which he was riding skidded on the Ioco oil refinery road and slammed into a front yard.

Fire destroyed a house in the Indian village of Ahousat, about 130 miles northwest of Victoria, early Sunday. Mrs. Rose John, 49, perished in the flames with her four-year-old daughter Caroline and 15-month-old granddaughter, Carol Swan. (See Page 12.)

In the Interior, S. C. LeFleuvre, 46, of Sicamous died of a heart attack Saturday after driving 16 miles to report a fire which burned down a friend's home.

An old-age pensioner, Henry Olson, died Saturday from scald burns he received at his lonely cabin four miles from Salmon Arm last Tuesday.

Elaine Eely, 15 months, died in suburban Burnaby in Vancouver Sunday from the effects of domestic gas poisoning. Other members of the family escaped unharmed.

Donald Roy Johnson, 28, and an unidentified 17-year-old girl died of asphyxiation or suffocation in a Vernon hotel room, police reported Sunday.

NEW MAYOR SWORN IN

AN EDITORIAL

Announcing: World's Tallest Totem

A FEW WEEKS AGO the government announced that the work of Mungo and David Martin, the Indian carvers, was being suspended because of a lack of funds.

This distinguished father-and-son team, inheritors of a great British Columbia cultural tradition, faced three months of unemployment, until new budget appropriations came into effect.

Today—after consultations with the Martins, the Hon. Ray Williston, and Mr. Wilson Duff of the Provincial Museum—The Times is happy to announce a new project which promises to be the greatest challenge of the carvers' career, and a fitting climax to 75-year-old Mungo Martin's lifetime in this ancient art.

The Times will spearhead a community drive over the next three months to have the Martins carve "THE WORLD'S TALLEST TOTEM."

* * *

Strange as it may seem, the world's tallest totem today is not in British Columbia, the home of the great Indian art, but in a downtown museum in Toronto—the Ontario Provincial Museum. This totem is 86 feet high.

The second highest is in a public park in Tacoma, Wash. This is advertised as "the world's tallest totem," but it is not. It was cut from a 105-foot tree, but a substantial sector of it is underground. Experts say that the section above the ground is 75 feet high, making it second to the totem in Toronto.

Mungo and David Martin and their assistant, Henry Hunt—represented by Wilson Duff—have entered into a contract with The Times to carve the "World's Tallest Totem" over the next three months.

* * *

On completion of the project, The Times will turn it over to the City of Victoria with the proposal that it be erected on some prominent headland in Beacon Hill Park, where the mighty totem will be visible by sea, land and air, as an inspiring landmark of our city.

Monies to finance the carving—an estimated $4,500—will be raised through the news columns of The Times and administered by financial officers of this newspaper.

In order to make the "World's Tallest Totem" a community-wide project, The Times is inviting subscriptions from individuals as well as businesses; from school children to "60-up" groups; from arts and crafts clubs to major lumber enterprises, who will be asked to help The Times find a cedar which will show at least 100 feet of totemic carving above the ground.

* * *

To provide the widest possible base for contributions, and ensure that every group in the community is represented, The Times will issue "World's Tallest Totem" shares at 50 cents apiece, and will start the fund by subscribing 200 shares (or $100) today.

Only enough shares will be issued to cover the net cost of the project.

These shares will entitle holders to watch the progress of the carving in Thunderbird Park over the next three months, and to attend the dedication ceremonies when the totem is completed.

At that time a scroll bearing the names of all shareholders will be buried in the base of the totem.

* * *

Mayor Percy Scurrah has commended the project "as a very public-spirited effort by The Times . . . bound to become a splendid tourist attraction." And, in a letter to The Times today, Education Minister Ray Williston says:

"I am pleased to see that you plan to make use of the abilities of these men. This will effectively bridge the employment gap until money is provided for their salaries in the next fiscal year.

"I am sure that your project will bring added publicity to the City and to the (totem) Restoration Project as a whole. The progress made thus far has only been possible because private groups have always stood ready to share responsibility for this work with the Government. All of the trees, which have been used in the carving program, were donated by interested firms doing business in this area. . . .

"May I commend your paper for sponsoring the carving of the largest totem pole in the world. I am sure the project will be a success."

Donations should be sent to "The World's Tallest Totem," with name and address, care of The Times, Victoria. Your share certificates will be mailed out shortly.

Coalition Moves Follow Indecisive General Election

PARIS (UP) — Popular vote for the main political groupings in 88 of the 90 French metropolitan departments showed:

Communists—4,532,896 votes; 150 seats.
Republican Front (Mendes-France)—5,094,536; 173 seats.
Centre-Right Front (Faure)—5,478,489; 199 seats.
Gaullists—750,064; 19 seats.
Anti-Tax Poujadists—2,163,391; 52 seats.
Other Rightists—397,823; 4 seats.

PARIS (UP)—The forces of rabble-rousing anti-tax crusader Pierre Poujade and those of the Communists made sensational gains today in crucial national parliamentary elections that all but killed hopes of a stable government for France.

Pierre Mendes-France's Left-Centre Republican Front ran better than expected, but it trailed the Right-Centre Front of Premier Edgar Faure and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. The remnants of the Gaullists were nearly wiped out.

The results meant that no single party gained a majority of seats in the new national assembly. The only hope of forming a new government will be another coalition, perhaps by the forces of Mendes-France and Faure, or of Mendes-France and the Communists. Mendes-France, however, already has rejected a Communist offer to join forces, describing the suggestion as an "insult."

150 REDS ELECTED

Unofficial results for 574 of the 594 seats at stake at home and overseas gave the Communists 150, the Republican Front (Mendes-France) 173, the Centre-Right Front (Faure) 199, and the Poujadists 52.

These results include 19 Gaullists, who were expected to split about 15 to 4 in favor of Mendes-France, and four members of the National Rally party, who probably would be pro-Faure.

However, allocation of such splinter-party seats to the two big groups will not be definite until the voting trends of the new assembly are known.

110 DEPUTIES OUSTED

The French voters registered a massive protest against their humpty-dumpty governments of the past 10 years. They threw out 110 deputies from the last assembly.

But, ironically, the vote assured more instability than before. If a new government is to be formed when the assembly meets Jan. 19 there will have to be more political horse-trading of the type which bred previous instability. In addition, the outcome raised the spectre of more elections.

The Communists emerged as France's largest party in assembly seats as well as size, although their popular vote dropped slightly. The party received about 24 per cent of the total vote, compared to more than 25 per cent in the last election in 1951.

Poujade's percentage zoomed from nothing to 10.9 per cent.

The handsome 34-year-old stationery salesman was not himself a candidate, but he put the largest number of candidates in the field and said they would be "hanged" if they failed to obey him. Poujade's enemies called him an anti-Semite and a "Fascist."

FRANC FALLS

Stocks slumped on the Paris Bourse. Gold climbed from 445,000 francs an ingot to 460,000. The French franc fell on the Zurich exchange.

At stake in Monday's elections were 544 seats from metropolitan France, plus 50 from overseas, making a total of 594. Additionally, New Caledonia with one seat votes Jan. 8 and Oceania, with one seat, votes Jan. 29, making a total of 596. Algeria, with 30 seats, did not vote because violence there caused the elections to be postponed indefinitely. This gives a total of 626 seats in the new assembly.

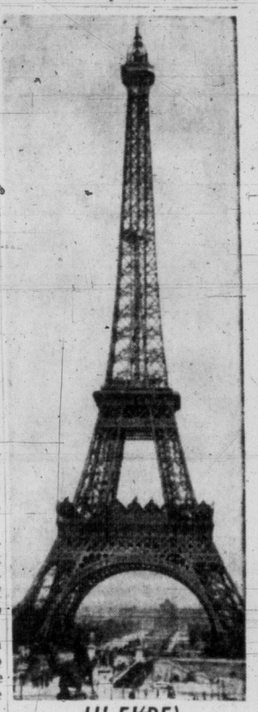
POUJADISTS JUBILANT

The most surprised men in France were the Poujadists themselves. They had bragged they would win 30 seats, but they hardly expected 52.

Georges Rosieres, Poujade's propaganda chief, said at the anti-tax leader's 15-room chateau outside Paris: "We shall stir things up in that Assembly."

Former premier Paul Raynaud said the elections taught three lessons:

(1) That the French constitution must be changed immediately to strengthen the executive; (2) that the rules of the National Assembly must be drastically tightened, and (3) that the Assembly must immediately vote a new electoral law.



HI-FI(RE)

Famed landmark of Paris, the Eiffel Tower, caught fire today from overworked television cables installed to broadcast election returns. Firemen dashed up its 1,710 steps and extinguished blaze before serious damage. The tower erected in 1889 is one of most profitable tourist attractions in French capital.

1 Dead, 7 Hurt As Pickets Battle Police

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—At least seven persons were hurt and one man died, possibly of a heart attack, in a flareup of violence this morning at the strikebound Westinghouse plant here.

Police arrested about 70 persons taking part in a mass demonstration at the plant's five gates.

Automobiles were overturned at each of the gates. Sheriff's deputies said the trouble started as they sought to break up the mass picketing and that striking members of Local 746, International Union of Electrical Workers, threw stones and damaged squad cars. Windshields of a number of other cars also were reported broken.

Among those in the county jail are union members from Cincinnati, Mansfield and other Ohio cities, officers said. Police quoted some of those arrested as saying they came here for a business meeting.

Jailers said "billy clubs" and stones were found on some of those arrested.

Five Killed In Manitoba

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—A New Year's Day two-car collision near St. Pierre, Man., claimed five victims. Three others are "critical".

Traffic accidents and fires claimed 52 lives in Canada during the New Year holiday weekend.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

LORD JESUS, who hast loved us into life, help us to live in Thy love. Clear as the sun in the heavens may Thy love be to everyone who waits on Thee. In its warmth and brightness may our souls bear the blossoms of holiness and the fruits of loving service. And may the fullness of Thy love be the end toward which all our hopes are turned.—Rt. Rev. George C. Pidgeon, D.D. Toronto, Canada, past-moderator, United Church of Canada.

ON MIDDLE EAST CRISIS

Eden Calls Cabinet To Emergency Talks

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden called his cabinet today to discuss the growing crisis in the Middle East and to consider opposition demands for parliamentary debate on the government's policy of selling arms to the Arabs and Israelis.

Eden assembled his ministers after meeting the new Labor party leader, Hugh Gaitskell, and turning down a request that he invite the Kremlin to help maintain peace in the explosive Middle East.

The cabinet meeting preceded an emergency conference Wednesday between Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and British ambassadors to eight Middle East countries who were suddenly ordered back to London.

Accompanying the diplomatic activity was a warning by Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion that the Jewish state must be ready for imminent war with her Arab neighbors. Ben-Gurion told his parliament, however, that war would not be "unavoidable."

Ben-Gurion announced Monday that national service in the Israeli army will be extended to meet the danger of attack from the rearming Arab nations.

Ben-Gurion, who is also defence minister, said the period of national service in the army will be increased from its present 2½ years to 3½.

PRESS CRITICAL

Britain's press, meanwhile, is keeping up a barrage of criticism against the Eden government over revelations that old British tanks and other surplus war goods have trickled through Belgium to the Middle East.

The government issued a statement pledging anew to do all in its power to prevent a Middle East arms race. At the same time, it partially lifted its recent embargo on war-surplus goods, saying such goods could be shipped abroad if governments concerned could guarantee the material would not be reconditioned and resold for military purposes.

In response to Gaitskell's request for a "new approach to Russia on Middle East issues, Eden said he already had made futile overtures to the Russians—who have been busy wooing the Arab world and channeling arms to Egypt.

The Soviet answer, Eden said, "was not in the Geneva spirit."

Traffic Toll In U.S. 336

CHICAGO (BUP) — Holiday traffic deaths set a record for a three-day New Year's celebration, but an all-out safety campaign saved 70 lives.

The United Press count showed that 336 persons died in traffic accidents.

It wasn't close to the 420 predicted by the National Safety Council. The council estimated that the final New Year's death tally would stop at about 350.

Big Momentum of '55 Economy Expected to Carry Through '56

Primary, Secondary Production Leaped Ahead 6% During Year

By TOM GOULD

The year 1955 was one of unprecedented prosperity in British Columbia.

That's the firm belief of government statisticians adding up the totals—in dollars, tons, board feet, and hours-per-man—which will make up the picture of the past 12 months.

In almost every phase of economic activity, enormous strides were taken, and the momentum is confidently expected to carry through to the end of 1956.

The slightly depressed conditions of 1954 have faded into the background, as the province's surging economy pushed on to topple records in every field. Government officials have revealed that, on a basis of conservative preliminary estimates, primary and secondary production leaped ahead a full six per cent.

Compared with the spurts of 1942-44, and the late Korean war period, this six per cent climb was not a record, but is considered far more significant, in that it was experienced in peacetime, and not in war.

Primary Industries Thriving

"This year's was a healthy, solid growth," said an official of the statistics branch.

The primary industries, notably pulp and paper, poured millions of investment dollars into the economy, while secondary industries, many integrated with forest operations, spread out in every direction.

Employment and earnings, retail sales, production and investment, all forged ahead.

The announcement of a $1,000,000 plant, by the end of 1955, caused barely a ripple of interest, as British Columbians dwelt on announcements of projects on the drawing boards costing half a billion dollars.

The optimism expressed in Premier W. A. C. Bennett's 1955 budget address was termed "cautious optimism," but with the full impact of the year's development beginning to take form, government leaders are leaving out the "cautious."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner remarked: "This has been the best year in the province's history. Next year and the years to follow promise to be as good, or better."

And last Friday, Premier Bennett predicted, "1956 will be B.C.'s greatest year."

According to Trade Minister Ralph Chetwynd, there is no end in sight to B.C.'s development, which has attracted the attention of the entire world in the postwar decade.

"It is difficult to find a suitable word for it," he said, "but whatever you call it, it seems here to stay, barring any catastrophic developments internationally."

Said Mr. Chetwynd: "I will predict that all sections of the economy will show a 25 per cent increase, at least, next year."

At year's end, capital is pouring into B.C. from every corner of the world, eastern Canada, Germany, Holland, Scandinavian countries, the United Kingdom, the United States, and dozens of others.

Pulp, Paper Industry Leads All

Leading the parade are the pulp and paper companies. They have embarked on an expansion of $250,000,000, and the end is not in sight.

Construction of the $142,000,000 natural gas pipeline from the Peace River is under way, and will be accelerated in the spring, drawing a deluge of secondary manufacturing plants.

Giant hydro projects are springing up on wilderness lakes and rivers.

On Vancouver's doorstep, Annacis Island industrial estate is taking form. Eventually it will represent $250,000,000 in investment capital.

Frobisher Ventures massive plan for harnessing the Tukon-Atlin-Taku watershed has been watered down temporarily, but the firm is pressing studies for a $50,000,000 development on the Nass River.

Alcan is still in the investment limelight, as the firm pushes investment toward a total $320,000,000.

In the industrial heart of B.C., Greater Vancouver, new buildings are taking form which will change the city's skyline. Housing developments are springing up at a pace which is stretching sewerage, lighting, roads and other facilities.

The B.C. Electric plans spending $75,000,000 on expansion of its facilities in 1956, in an effort to keep one jump ahead of the province's growth, a growth which is expected to result in a population of 3,000,000 in 20 years.

Municipalities are pouring out millions of dollars on services to meet population demands.

Unequalled Highway Construction

Everywhere in B.C., there is word of new projects, new plants, and new jobs.

Highways are being widened and improved at a rate never before equalled. Highway expenditures are expected to double in 1956, to a total of over $65,000,000.

Mining had a good year, with higher prices offsetting slightly lower production in many fields. The total production is expected to equal the record set in 1951, when base metal prices leaped with the Korean war.

New discoveries are being made every day, as prospectors backed up by the financial resources of giant companies push into unexplored ground.

Fishing industry had only a "so-so" year, as major salmon runs failed to appear on schedule; and agriculture was beset by poor weather conditions.

But higher prices in both industries helped bring up the value of production to a level equal to that of 1954.

B.C. in 1955 embarked on a bridge-building spree unequalled in history. Giant steel and concrete spans will cross the Second Narrows, in Burrard Inlet, the Fraser River near Marpole, the Fraser at Agassiz, Lake Okanagan at Kelowna, Kootenay Lake at Nelson.

Each bridge will be a multi-million-dollar undertaking.

The Pacific Great Eastern Railway extension to North Vancouver will be completed by June of 1956. It will cost $12,000,000, and the government is pouring another $60,000,000 into the northern extension, which will carry the line north to tap the Peace River country.

Hearst, in a front-page "editor's report" in the New York Journal-American's Sunday edition, said this was the president's decision "barring unexpected medical complications."

Time and Mr. Pearson

MR. PEARSON'S VIEWS ON International affairs have often been criticized—chiefly in Russia—but until recently they have never been called "neutralist." This contemptuous adjective appears exclusively in "Time" magazine as part of a gross misrepresentation of Canadian foreign policy.

Usually Mr. Pearson pays no attention to this sort of distortion. In the case of the "Time" article, however, he felt it necessary to make a formal correction, lest the views of Canada be misunderstood by our neighbors in the United States.

As the stenographic record shows, "Time" misrepresented a press conference given by Mr. Pearson at the United Nations, just before he left for the NATO conference in Europe a few weeks ago. The offending passage in "Time" reads as follows:

"In Russia, Khrushchev and Bulganin apparently convinced Pearson of their determination never to allow the unification of Germany as long as West Germany remains in the NATO alliance. Although he insisted that the Russians did not shake his faith in NATO, Pearson has since argued for a reappraisal of NATO policy on Germany. Pearson's neutralist views have led some critics to call him a 'Nehru in a Homburg.'

"At the United Nations recently, a correspondent asked him whether he now thought the West should release West Germany from NATO in the hope that the Communists would then free the entire country. Mr. Pearson dodged, but did not deny this new viewpoint. 'That's a very good question,' he said. 'We'd better wait and see.'"

The shorthand record shows this report to be totally inaccurate.

Mr. Pearson did not say that Russia would never allow the reunification of Germany while West Germany remains in NATO. He said just the opposite: "When I say that the Russians made it perfectly clear that they would not agree to unification of Germany, if Germany remained in NATO, we should remember that the Russians have in the past said things like that, too, and when it suited their purposes they have never hesitated later to change their minds or their policies. So we should take the word 'never' from Moscow with that particular qualification."

"Time's" reference to Mr. Pearson's desire for a reappraisal of NATO policy is even more misleading. His quoted comments were directed, as the record shows, to another question entirely.

It is not necessary in Canada, of course, to deny the snide suggestion that Mr. Pearson holds "neutralist" views like those of Mr. Nehru. Over the years no statesman in the Western world has done more than Mr. Pearson to rally the free peoples against the menace of Communism.

Unfortunately, however, the American people seldom read Mr. Pearson's speeches. A casual smear in a publication like "Time" is likely to receive more attention in the United States than the daily record of the Canadian foreign minister's work or the actual policy of his Government.

But there can be no doubt about the Russians' opinion of Mr. Pearson. Not long ago he was in Moscow and there confronted at first-hand the leaders of the Kremlin as the defender of the West's policy in general and American policy in particular. The Russians discovered nothing neutralist in his opinions. On the contrary, Mr. Khrushchev, speaking in Moscow last week, vigorously attacked Mr. Pearson for his hostility to Russian policy.

Mr. Pearson is a neutralist only in the pages of "Time" which, with a deplorable lack of responsibility, misrepresents not only him but a friendly Canadian nation. If the Luce publications desire a strong Western alliance they use strange methods to promote it—the method of distortion and sneer.

Knowledge at First Hand

A NUMBER OF EASTERN newspapers have noted the results of fluoridation tests announced a few days ago. A 10-year experiment with fluoridated water in Brantford, Ont., and Newburgh, N.Y., has been summed up in reports which show very marked improvement in dental health.

The New York state tests were especially conclusive. The water supply in the community of Newburgh was fluoridated, that in Kingston, N.Y., was not. Children who had drunk the fluoridated water all their lives in Newburgh showed 58 per cent less dental decay than children in Kingston, where the water was untreated. For the New York State Health Commissioner, Dr. H. E. Hilleboe, the experiment provided "irrefutable evidence" that fluoridation is safe and effective.

As the New York Times comments: "The highest medical and dental authority throughout the land concurs in support of fluoridation. The cost involved is insignificant—except in the damage done to children by delay."

The Brantford, Ont., experiment was even more spectacular. School children in that city recorded a 60 per cent reduction in decayed, missing and filled teeth during the decade of fluoridation. The cost of between 12 and 17 cents per capita per year, says the Ontario Health Department, "results in an average reduction in decayed teeth which would cost between 10 and 20 times as much to treat."

Brantford's medical officer of health, dealing with actual experience, not theory, concludes that "Brantford's 10-year study of water fluoridation has demonstrated that fluoridation is simple, cheap, effective and completely safe."

Such proven results should be studied by the city and municipal councils of Greater Victoria and a full and authoritative background of information obtained. Only thus can the question be approached in this area with a proper appreciation of the value of this great forward step in public health.

Test on the Nass?

THE B.C. News Letter has drawn attention to the proposed Frobisher development of Nass River power potentials.

The plan is scarcely beyond the survey stage at this point, but one feature mentioned by the news letter should rouse general attention.

"Fish may be a factor in the further consideration of this project," says the publication, "since a high level dam could interfere with the migration of Meziadin Lake salmon races. It is conceded that this could be an experimental area where ability to get salmon past hydro-electric obstacles could be tested on a practical scale."

Provided the tests covered both the upstream passage of salmon to spawning grounds and the downstream journey of fingerlings to the sea, the experiment could be highly significant.

It is generally believed that science and engineering can help salmon upstream to the spawning grounds—though such aid may be costly. There is no similar assurance that small fish can be protected from death in the penstock or turbine on the way down.

Perhaps hydro development on the Nass could provide an excellent field in which research could be continued. While the salmon runs utilizing that river are important, they scarcely compare in size or economic value to those of the Fraser.

If the Nass is to be dammed—and there is no definite commitment on that point at the moment—then surely the fisheries authorities should move in to conduct their experiments. And the experimenting agency should be free of any influence from power interests. British Columbians want the independent opinion of fisheries experts, not the findings of scientists whose views may be colored by special electrical affiliations.

A Good Nuisance Tax to Drop

SOMETHING MORE THAN THE Christmas spirit seems to have moved Alderman Millard Mooney to recommend abolition of the annual bicycle licensing tax in Victoria.

The tax is petty. Its returns barely cover costs of maintaining the office which issues it. And it falls on children and those people who can ill afford to pay such imposts.

One purpose only is served by the registration system. Through its application bicycles are more easily identified when they go astray. But even then, if the machines are stolen, it is a simple matter for thieves to obliterate or remove the licence number.

Victoria has tried bicycle licensing. To all intents and purposes the experiment has been profitless. The city can easily afford to abandon it and thereby give a lead to other districts which also impose this nuisance levy against those who ride bikes.

LOOSE ENDS — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

It's Your New Year

ACCORDING to the calendar, we are about to begin a new year, but the calendar, though old and experienced, has never learned to tell the truth. The truth, of course, is that we began a New Year some days ago, in the early morning hours of Dec. 22, when that inferior speck of matter called the earth suddenly turned its northern flank to the sun.

Hutchison

In a larger sense the calendar is always an unreliable measurement of the year. It offers us 365 days, with an extra one every four years, but such neat figures mean very little to the human being who, quite properly, has an incurable aversion to mathematics.

He knows that all years, so nicely apportioned and equal on the calendar, are quite different in length, breadth and quality. Some are happy and short; some miserable and endless. And each year is different to each person who must live through it.

WE say, for example, that 1955 was the best year in Canada's history and so it was by economic and financial reckoning.

Such figures can mean much or nothing to the individual. He may regard 1955 as a glorious episode, a time of unexampled opulence, promising an even fairer hope in 1956. Or 1955 may wear the black visage of endless days and 1956 confront him as dismal vacuum, a tale to be told, in twelve installments, by an idiot, signifying nothing.

Little depends on the calendar. Everything depends on the man who is looking at it.

Still, we can foresee pretty clearly what will happen in 1956 and these events will bear only a faint resemblance to the prophesies of statesmen, economists and newspapers. Those authorities are dependable enough in their own vay but their predictions seldom touch any matter of importance.

THEY all tell us that in 1956 the Gross National Product (a repulsive phrase which most men wisely disregard) will break all records. No doubt, but what the ordinary man will want to know is whether his personal product will be sufficient to cover a new car, a television set or a holiday in Honolulu. The experts never tell us that. They tell us everything irrelevant to our true concerns, nothing which answers any single question of significance to that disordered social molecule called man.

If some discerning prophet would forget the calendar, the statistics and the known data he might construct for us, at the year's end, an almanac of some value.

Such an oracle might tell us, among other things, whether the spring will be early or late, when the bulbs will bloom and whether the green peas will thrive. Then we would be getting somewhere.

AGAIN he might inform us—this surely would not be difficult to foresee—how many times Premier Bennett will reduce the provincial debt by borrowing more money. (I would expect this announcement at least once a month, starting in the Vancouver Centre by-election and continuing until about next Christmas Eve.)

At approximately the same intervals we shall hear from the Conservatives in Ottawa that the Federal Government is about to spring a snap election, and from the Liberals of British Columbia that Mr. Bennett is planning the same thing.

All these excursions and alarms will alarm no one but the politicians for the public will be debating another kind of excursion; that is to say, the summer vacation, and it will be torn by all those domestic alarms that customarily precede this vital decision.

SHOULD we go to California, or Cariboo or the Calgary Stampede? Those are the real questions of the year but you won't hear Mr. Bennett mention them. He will be too busy borrowing and reducing, while most of us are borrowing and increasing our debt to pay for a trip.

We can be sure, at all events, that the affairs of state, for all our criticism, will be better conducted than our own. Indeed, if the business of government were conducted in 1956 with the inefficiency, waste and disorder of the average home the nation would be bankrupt by midsummer and liquidated by autumn.

Nothing of that sort will happen because, by some miraculous process beyond human comprehension, the collective family known as society is far better organized financially than its several parts.

YES, but what a dull life it would be for all of us if 1956 contained nothing but the Gross National Product, the federal budget and such things as Mr. Bennett's new borrowings and consequent debt reductions! Happily there will be much more in the new year than the statesmen tell us, and many more days, or less, than the calendar tells us. Every man will make his own year, long or short, good or bad, happy or unhappy, and no one can tell him anything about that.

The Time Will Never Come

BY JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP, From Washington

SOMETIMES a small scene sticks like a stubborn burr in the mind of the travelling reporter, when the things he ought to remember—the interviews with the great and near great, the famous prospects and the history-making moments—have long since faded from his mind. One such scene occurred last summer in the courtyard in front of the entrance to the ancient catacombs of Kiev, where the magnificently clothed corpses of Medieval holy men are preserved in winding underground corridors—the courtyard was a shabby place, with the special inimitable shabbiness you find everywhere in the Soviet Union.

Joseph

There were half a dozen Ukrainian children playing a slow, complicated game on the cobblestones, and an elderly cripple, his twisted legs doubled up under him, heating something in a can over a brushwood fire.

PEASANT BELIEVERS

There were a few casual visitors, Soviet citizens in loud prints or baggy suits, peering at the Medieval paintings of devils torturing sinners on the walls of the entrance to the catacombs, or just standing idly about.

But the scene was dominated by two dozen or more old peasant women, with kerchiefs over their heads and voluminous skirts reaching to the ground, looking exactly like illustrations from an old edition of a Tolstoy novel. The peasant women stood or sat or crouched in a bunch in one corner of the courtyard obviously waiting for something.

Suddenly there was a stirring and whispering among them. A big old man in priestly robes, with a crucifix dangling below his long beard, had entered the courtyard. With anxious eagerness, the peasant women crowded around this patriarchal figure, with a kind of heaving, fluttering movement, like elderly birds, to kiss the crucifix and receive a blessing.

There were no men at all in the crowd around the priest. But there was one very young girl, in a long white dress, with her hair braided in pigtails. She was being pushed fiercely forward, to kiss the crucifix, by a moustachioed old pleasant woman. Alone among the old women, the girl looked terribly embarrassed and shy.

The younger men and women looked on with tolerant amusement at the little crowd around the priest, and one or two laughed outright. But there was no thought of molesting the old women or the priest. There was no need to.

LAST GENERATION

For the old peasant women in their shawls belong to the last Christian generation in Russia. Such old women, and the aging priests who cater to their spiritual needs, are tolerated now in the Soviet Union, because they do not matter any more.

Before too long, they will be dead, the old women and the priests too. That is why the small scene in the courtyard seems worth recalling at this time. For when that day comes, there will be almost no one left throughout the vast Soviet land mass to whom Christmas, the great annual reaffirmation of the Christian ethic, means anything at all.

To be sure, in the younger generations there may be a few—perhaps even the embarrassed young girl in the courtyard—who have caught a whisper from the past, and still feel a need. But even if this is so, there will be no way to satisfy the need, for there is no religion without a clergy, and the priesthood is a dying race in Russia.

It is very much more likely that the young girl in the courtyard, like her whole generation, will embrace the new state religion with genuine conviction.

Lenin and Stalin will be her deities. Marxism-Leninism will be her bible. The anniversary of the October Revolution will be her Christmas. She will believe with a simple faith that communism is good and all else bad, and that communism must triumph soon, all over the world.

Perhaps it will. Despite the shabbiness and ugliness which is everywhere in the Soviet Union, all the instruments of naked national power are available in great profusion to the new high priests of Communist state religion. And the extent to which communism is a religion, passionately believed in by the younger Soviet generations, is greatly underestimated in the West.

Stewart

Indeed, this genuine faith in the false Communist religion is itself a great Soviet instrument of national power. Combined with the new weapons of total destruction, it threatens Christian civilization as never before. Yet somehow, in this season of the year, one feels a perhaps illogical conviction that the Christian ethic, which has survived so stubbornly for so long, will not die; and that the time will never come when Christmas means nothing at all, all over the world.

REALLY SHYNESS

I must not fail to point out that English reserve, as far as I have been able to make out, is not usually the outcome of conceit but of shyness. The Englishman is taught in childhood to be restrained. He is taught not to be inquisitive, and what one is taught in childhood usually becomes part and parcel of the texture of one's growth, of one's being.

Taking Down the Christmas Tree

As Our Readers See It

GAME FARM INDUSTRY

At this time of year, when we take stock of ourself, and count our blessings so to speak, I wish to take this opportunity to thank you and your editorial department for the fine publicity we have received in initiating the game farm industry on Vancouver Island.

As far as bird-banding is concerned, I have had more offers from clubs and organizations than I can hope to use this coming season, which will be the most successful thus far as far as migratory bird-banding is concerned. This, of course, is a non-profit endeavor organized by the Canada Wildlife Services.

NO CHRISTMAS CAROL

One item of Christmas morning news broadcast, because of its incongruity, was an outstandingly harsh note.

With the world celebrating the birth of the Prince of Peace, with almost universal songs of praise, the declaration by Chiang-Kai-Shek was made, that he was about to start open hostilities with China.

Is there no way of muzzling the beast? With a world openly conceding the suicidal insanity of war, and holding conference after conference to eliminate forever the possibility of resorting to open hostilities to settle international differences, why is he, Chiang, not muzzled and consigned to a spot prepared for his kind?

SOLSTICE

Thank you for the "Big Push." Woe betide any constant reader I hear complaining!

Only this morning I was again thinking of the charming article you wrote on the solstice (was it not two years ago?) as I watched a pair of sparrows commencing home building in a box, saw the first tentative green shoot of early bulbs, the swelling buds on an optimistic bush.

Everything seemed to be rejoicing the turn had happened. The days are lengthening and no matter what cold lies ahead the spring and summer will return.

I only hope I'll live to read another of your inimitable welcomes to the great miracle.

GOD AND THE QUEEN

I saw by the press a few days ago that our Prime Minister of Canada, Honorable Mr. St. Laurent, indicated he believes "Oh Canada" is becoming the national anthem by general acceptance and does not need to be designated by legislation.

I disagree with him, for it has not the required words in it to make it a national anthem. If every person says it, that would not make it one for it does not recognize either God or Queen. It is not even a patriotic song without the recognition of both God and Queen (in my mind).

We are a part of the British Commonwealth, and as long as we are our national anthem is "God Save the Queen." Let us be fair and true and loyal to our Queen and to our own people in our beloved Dominion of Canada of which we are so proud. I am a true and loyal subject of the Queen, a true Canadian at the same time. Born in Ontario, I have lived and worked hard on the prairies for nearly 60 years. Have done my part to help build Canada to what it is today as a citizen. We owe our existence to Britain. She worked, suffered and many died to save Canada. I was in Britain for nearly two months in 1949 and saw for myself some of what they suffered and sacrificed for us, as well as themselves and their country.

I visited many businesmen and their places, several clergymen old and young, attended several different churches, conversed with several members of Parliament and found most of them full of courage, cheerful and loyal regardless of their sacrifice and loss. I came home a stronger Britisher than when I went away from here.

I strongly protest against our people using "O Canada" as our national anthem and using "God Save the Queen" at the close of gatherings, especially at the end of sport games where, in a great many places, the band plays only two lines and that while the people are going out—an insult to our Queen. Nearly every country in the world today uses their "National Anthem" to open all public gatherings, especially sport and political.

RIGHTEOUS SOCREDS

Would you please reproduce the following item and rhymed comment?

News item in The Vancouver Sun of Saturday, Dec. 3, 1955:

He (Provincial Highways Minister Gaglardi) recalled that at the sod-turning for the Aggasiz-Rosedale bridge a woman spectator had told him she had petitioned originally for the span 42 years ago. Mr. Gaglardi commented: "The Lord knew that the McBride administration would never build the bridge. But He did send into the world a man that would—and for the past three years I've been trying."

* * *

All things bright and beautiful,
All creatures great and small,
All things wise and wonderful,
The good Lord made them all.
God made the fish and flowers,
He made us mortals, too,
But for the greatest scheme of things
He made a special few.

And one among the chosen
He made to speak His name
And build the province bridges
To modest self-acclaim.

Now mark you well, my children,
This story I have told,
And learn therefrom the folly
Of being brash and bold.

You, too, could build us bridges,
If given half a chance;
Yes, build us all fine bridges
To your own ego's dance!

Well might we ask: Are you a fabulous person, with a fabulous sense of humor or do you read fabulous stories? Have you found a fabulous treasure, with fabulous jewels or do you smoke fabulous cigarettes?

Fabulous seems to have become a word of extraordinary application.

We are fabulous this and fabulous that until fabulous has become a commonplace.

Victoria is now a fabulous city, with fabulous surroundings, fabulous buildings and fabulous people and at one time a truly fabulous lighthouse.

True some of us are fabulous, like Bruce Hutchison and Bert Thomas and Hans Gruber, but most of us are ordinary, every-day, down-to-earth, grass-roots individuals.

I believe it would be a good thing if we gave fabulous a chance to return to normal before too late, before it gets out of hand and we really are fabulous.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Around the Next Corner

I'VE been thinking about Humphry Davy's friends and prophecy. It seems to me Jimmy Fraser, the Indian nature watcher, Mrs. H. L. Hayes, tea cup reader, and Munsha Singh, Sikh astrologer, add a nice variant to the "double, double, toil and trouble" forecasts of more classical definition.

Stott

Each of Humphry's friends establishes a case for prescience on a different basis, and each offers an outline of events in the year ahead.

I've never been one to discount clairvoyance. I just don't happen to have any faculties of that type myself and I've never come across anyone who has. Far be it from me, though, to suggest it's a lot of nonsense.

Still, even if I could know what's going to happen in the future, I don't think I'd want to. It's more interesting taking it in as it happens.

I'm glad I didn't know how small a return I was going to reap for the spuds I planted last year. Digging up the ground, cutting the seed potatoes and putting them in the earth was good exercise. Probably I was a little healthier for doing it. Had I been given advance assurance that my crop would be negligible, I might not have bothered.

HOPE IN IGNORANCE

I'm pleased that I never knew how many or how few fish I'd catch whenever I dropped my line over. Given that knowledge, I might just as well have gone to the store and bought a few pounds. Only I wouldn't have done that because I don't like eating fish, and I'd have missed the fun of fishing.

I'm satisfied with the small excitements of uncertainty. I don't want everything cut and dried. And I don't want the day by day events of 1956 previewed for me. If they were, it would make the year a little stale even before it got under way. Living would be like reading a not very good book for the second time.

There are some things of which I'm sure in the year ahead. Good weather or bad, we'll have spring and it will react just about as it has reacted on humanity for centuries. The gardens will bloom. The lawn will need cutting. The new-turned earth will steam in the sun, and a few people I know will be more interested in collecting worms than weeds as they dig it.

Up at the lake the alder, willow and poplar will go through the misty transformations of new leaf, trilliums will blossom white against the dark forest floor, wood violets will turn their yellow heads to the sun and in the swampy ground yellow aram will lift its flamboyant petal-leaves.

SONGS OF SPRING

The squirrels will chatter and birds will slip quietly through the trees, nesting. The robin will rehearse his rain song and on starlit nights the frogs will present their throbbing chorus.

Summer will come with kids living each moment of their noisy splashing play. Evenings of near perfection will lend their soft touch to late August and September, and the brisk days of autumn, spiced with wood smoke from a hundred bonfires, will follow before another winter comes.

The simple, good things of life will be offered again. Youngsters will grow in strength and stature, learning a little more of maturity and its duties. There will be the usual small triumphs and the inevitable disappointments and disasters. The year will be woven with its customary joys and sorrows.

How each incident will turn out, I don't care to know. But there will be light and shadow, laughter and tears. Each will be part of living.

We will play our small parts on the vitally important stage which is our own—creatures of a broader fate, perhaps, but concerned largely with those things immediately about us.

The year won't be all hearts and flowers and it won't be all woe. But it will be a lot more worth living if we can keep that small excitement in us as we wonder what's around the next corner.

YOUR HEALTH

Rheumatoid Arthritis in Pigs

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation

MANY persons ask me if research is being done on arthritis, and of course, much is being done. One of the big steps forward was reported recently at a meeting of 400 men doing research with the American Rheumatism Association. Dr. G. M. Neher of Purdue told the group that arthritis appears commonly in pigs after an attack of swine erysipelas. Following up this observation, Dr. Neher and his associates injected 291 pigs with a germ and in a high percentage of the animals they were able to produce a disease resembling rheumatoid arthritis.

Dr. Alvarez

Then they first vaccinated the animals against the infection and, after that, the germs produced arthritis in 100 per cent of the pigs. This observation re-enforces a hunch we physicians have long had that several chronic diseases are due to the action of an infection on the arteries of a person who is first sensitized or made allergic to the germ. We sometimes have seen such serious disease follow a marked reaction to the injection of some serum.

Interestingly, the rheumatoid disease in pigs responds well to cortisone and ACTH. It is very encouraging to know that at last a serious type of arthritis can be studied in animals. It is helpful, also, to know that a disease that looks like rheumatoid arthritis can be due to a reaction to a bacterium.

INTERESTED IN MENTAL ILLNESS

I was much pleased to find in Science News Letter that Jane Stafford, the prize-winning Science writer, told members of the National Association for Mental Health at their recent meeting that today one can hardly find a newspaper or magazine that hasn't some note or article on mental disease. As Miss Stafford said, the public has at last passed the stage of shunning thoughts of mental illness. It has now reached the stage of "wanting to read about it; wanting to know more about what it is, and what can be done about it."

This is good news because adequate research is seldom done on a disease until the public wants it done, and is willing to pay for it.

HEART ATTACKS COMMON IN NEGROES

In the Nov. 21 number of Medical News is an interesting report showing that in Chicago the death rate from coronary heart disease (per 100,000 population) in Negro men aged from 45 to 64 years was 831. The similar figure for white men was 771. This certainly does not support the idea that the commonest cause of heart attacks is the strain of life in big business.

Another strange observation made by Dr. Jeremiah Stamler, as he studied the mortality figures obtained from Dr. Bundesen and Dr. William Fishbein, was that among whites with heart attacks there were 5 deaths in men to 1 in women (in the 25 to 44 year group). In the 45 to 64 year group the ratio dropped to 2.5 men to 1 woman.

Among Negroes in the 25 to 44 year group the ratio was almost 1 to 1. It will be interesting to see later if this high incidence of coronary heart disease in Negro women is correlated with their often great obesity, or perhaps with a large amount of the fat-like cholesterol in their blood, or perhaps within their blood a large number of the large cholesterol-containing molecules described by Dr. John Gofman of the University of California.

It is with studies like this that we physicians are gradually learning what we want to know about the causes of heart attacks and other diseases.

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE IRON LUNG

It looks as if the cumbersome and inconvenient iron lung will soon be scrapped and replaced by a much lighter apparatus which will enable the patient to sit up and get about in a hospital or home. At the recent meeting of the American Society of Anesthesiologists a device was described which fits over the patient's neck and regularly sends a wave of air into his lungs through a hole made in his trachea, just below the Adam's apple. The trachea is the tube that carries air to and from the lungs.

Dr. Frederick H. Van Bergen of the University of Minnesota reported after seven months' study of the new apparatus that it does a good job of supplying air to the lungs. It may be available commercially in another six months.

THE CHILD WHO HAS SEIZURES

A while ago, Dr. Haddow M. Keith and his associates in the Children's Department at the Mayo Clinic studied the mental status of 296 children who had either petit mal (transient mild spells), grand mal (convulsions or fainting spells) or mixtures of petit mal and grand mal. The doctors found that 37.5 per cent of the children were mentally retarded, 14.5 per cent were dull, and 48 per cent had average or better than average intelligence.

Retardation was found most often in the youngest children, hence the earlier the spells appear the worse it is likely to be for the child. Retardation is much more likely to appear also in children who suffer from a large head, paralysis of one side of the body, spastic palsy, or other sign of local disease of the brain.

SYNOPSIS—

Southern B.C. is in the path of a series of storms developing west of the California coast and moving rapidly toward Washington and southern B.C. Some rain and southeasterly winds along the coast will accompany these storms with partial clearing and showers between storms. The next storm in this series is expected to cross southern B.C. overnight. This flow of Pacific air will keep coastal temperatures mild and bring warmer temperatures to the interior of the province.

Canadian Firm Listed As Royal Supplier

LONDON (Reuters) — More than 500 traders, from seed growers to builders of organ blowers and farm tractors, were listed Monday in the people Queen Elizabeth cannot do without.

They are the holders of the most coveted "advertisement plug" of all—the royal warrant.

Their names appeared in the official London Gazette among nearly 1,000 traders, representing every facet in industry, who supply their wares to members of the Royal Family.

To qualify for a royal warrant, a firm must give at least three years of faultless service. During that time its products are rigorously tested.

The first Elizabethan warrant holders were announced last July, and Monday the Queen took the opportunity of bringing the list up to date and handing out about 30 additional warrants.

The Royal warrant entitles suppliers of the Queen and her family to display the Royal coat of arms above their shops, on their delivery trucks, on their notepaper and in advertisements accompanied by the words—"by appointment."

New warrent holders included Massey-Harris-Ferguson, the big agricultural machinery combine in Toronto.

A London official of the firm explained that it had been supplying tractors and implements to the Royal farms in recent years.

The original firm of Massey-Harris of Canada—it was amalgamated with the British Ferguson Tractor Co. in 1954—held warrants to previous monarchs.

Warrants are renewed every 10 years. But they are declared void if the firm goes bankrupt, is liquidated, wound up, sold or amalgamated so that it materially changes its character.

Britain's Caribbean Leaders Meet Feb. 7 to Finalize Merger

LONDON (AP)—Britain Monday summoned a conference of Caribbean leaders for London, Feb. 7 to hammer out final details for merging her West Indian possessions into one self-governing federation.

Colonel Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd will preside over the talks, scheduled to reach final decisions on all outstanding issues and agree on settlement machinery for ironing out last-minute snags. No date has yet been fixed for setting up the federations.

Main job of the conference will be to consider the reports of three committees set up to work out the fiscal, civil service and judicial problems involved.

The new Carribbean federation will include Jamaica, Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, Montserrat, Dominica, St. Vincent, Grenada, Barbados and Trinidad, and Tabago.

The plan for the federation calls for all the territories to be banded together under a governor-general and administered by a nominated Senate and a wholly-elected House of Representatives.

Medical Arts Building Spark For New Commercial Area?

JUST ABOUT LAST of office accessories moves into spanking new Medical Arts Building, now open at Cook and Rudlin. Edifice, costing over $500,000, houses more than 40 doctors' offices.

Builders and architects who shared in construction of the new Medical Arts Building which opened this week at Cook and Rudlin feel its completion will start a trend to new commercial building in that area.

Facing Pandora Green and well serviced by buses, the area is also less congested by traffic and parking.

Homes in the area are mostly of fairly old construction, making demolition less costly, and the neighborhood is in close proximity to other business.

The park-like green separating Pandora and Rudlin Streets would tend to revive the Old Country style of a commercial centre built around a village square, a style advocated by many town planners.

44 City Doctors Occupy New Block

Convenient Location Serviced By 5 Bus Lines; 2-Hour Parking

Starting this week, almost one-quarter of Victoria's 200 medical practitioners will be doing business under one roof.

Forty-four doctors and their office staffs are in final process of moving into 38 suites of offices at the new Medical Arts Building at Rudlin and Cook.

Even before the formal opening Monday by Mayor Percy Scurrah, patients were visiting their family physicians or specialists in the new $518,000 medical centre.

Many commented on the handy new location of their doctor's offices. Serviced by five bus lines and handy to a sixth on Yates Street, the building is also situated in an area where two-hour parking meters are slated for installation, thus assuring sufficient time for a visit to the doctor.

The area combines a pleasant vista of Pandora Green with relatively quiet surroundings. Within half a mile of the city centre, it can be reached without passing through the bustling downtown area in most cases.

The doctors find the location handy also. The building is situated midway between the city's two large hospitals. It is one of the few buildings in Victoria built with adequate parking area so that every doctor can keep his car handy to his office.

The parking area, though unfinished, will be blacktopped and will give access to Johnson Street as well as Rudlin and the Cook-Pandora intersection.

The fact that the building is so suited to the particular needs of the medical men is due to the fact that it was the doctors themselves who built it, on a co-operative basis.

It was conceived in 1948. Among the original planners were Dr. O. C. Lucas, Dr. W. A. Trenholme, Dr. J. D. Stenstrom and Dr. R. C. Newby.

The other doctors, whose names are listed elsewhere on this page, entered the scheme later.

The plan was discussed with Robert Cheyne, CA, who aided in financial arrangements. Architects Wade, Stockdill and Armour drew the plans and General Construction and the Commonwealth Construction handled most of the building. A year was spent in building the offices.

Management of the building is in the hands of city realtors Ker and Stephenson. Several suites not in use by the doctors' company, Medico-Arts Ltd., are leased to a pharmacy, a laboratory, two X-ray clinics and a prescribing optical company.

BUILDING HAS OWN DISPENSARY

On main floor of new structure is dispensary of McGill and Orme. Location is designed for convenience of patients.

Caption Error Costs Publisher His Paper

NEW YORK (UP)—The publisher of a Dominican Republic newspaper charged Friday that he was forced to leave the republic and seek asylum in the United States because of an error in a picture caption that appeared in his newspaper.

Dr. German Ornes Coiscu said the caption mistakenly described a bust of Dominican Republic strongman Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo as his tomb.

As a result, Ornes said, he was "deprived" of his newspaper which he said was valued at about $1,000,000, and a $60,000 home. He said caption was "dead or alive or in jail."

he did not know whether the reporter who prepared the

The two proofreaders who passed it and the linotype operator who set it in type were jailed, Ornes said, and "I would not give a red penny for their lives."

The caption, apparently prepared as a grim joke, got into print "by some queer twist of fate," Ornes said. It ran under a picture showing a group of children placing a wreath on a bust of Trujillo and said "after the placing of a wreath at the tomb of the illustrious benefactor and father of the new fatherland, Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo Molina."

Ornes said he fired the reporter "as any editor would do" but said he nevertheless lost his newspaper and had to leave the country.

He charged Trujillo, now retired as president of the Dominican Republic, with "tyranny" but said he had been a "collaborator" with the Trujillo regime because he had to do so in order to maintain his newspaper.

The Dominican information centre in New York accused Ornes in a statement of "milking" the paper of all available working capital and of transferring funds to New York.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—A policeman almost shot himself Monday night with a pair of loaded pants. Patrolman Fred Golden said he was holding his trousers in one hand and brushing them off with the other when a loose pistol bullet went off in one of the pockets. It missed him.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A spry 77-year-old woman went swimming here Sunday.

Mrs. C. Bush joined 42 other game members of the Vancouver Polar Bear Swimming Club in the annual New Year's Day swim at English Bay here.

Gordon Freeze stayed in the water for an hour during the endurance competition.

A crowd of 3,500 shivering spectators watched the event from a lightly snow-covered shore.

FAST RELAY GETS NOD

Bells on Television Outpace Real Thing

The NBC-CBC television broadcast of Christ Church Cathedral bells Sunday on the program "Wide Wide World" posed a unique effect for listeners near the cathedral.

They could hear the live broadcast on their sets before the sound reached them directly from the cathedral.

Broadcast, about six minutes, was relayed from an antenna atop the cathedral and boomed to Mount Blyn, near Port Angeles, from there to Seattle, and then relayed across the country to New York where it was fed back.

And despite this, it came back over local sets faster than a listener 100 yards from the bell towers could pick up the sound. There was about one-seventh of a second lapse.

TRAFFIC TOLL AT NEW LOW IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police, totalling up the books for 1955, today termed it the best traffic year since the keeping of modern records.

The figure of 25 fatalities was the lowest in 15 years and on a traffic-mile basis, 1955 was the best, a spokesman said.

Records showed the total of injured increased in 1955 while property damage and the number of accidents were about the same as 1954.

WIRED MUSIC, TOO

Modern Design To Aid Doctors

Modern designing incorporated in the new Medical Arts Building includes two firsts for this area.

The building is the first to be constructed with baseboard heating throughout and it is the first building to use interior partitions of solid plaster.

The 38 office suites are planned to suit the latest vogue for doctor's offices—a series of examination rooms where patients can be readied for the doctor while he is still engaged with patients who arrived earlier.

The five-storey building has a floor area of 39,000 square feet. Individual suites range from 1,700 to 5,000 square feet, some doctors who are in practice together sharing the larger suites.

The suites combine three examination rooms with a consulting room and a nurse's storage room and office. Each has a waiting room, fronted with large windows, all of which offer pleasant views.

Although the building is not high by downtown standards, surrounding buildings are low enough that the top floor offices afford an excellent view of the whole downtown area.

The building is serviced by two automatic elevators. Push a button and the elevator which is closest to you comes to your floor. Other electronic devices include a nurse's signal system in each office and in some provision for wired music to the waiting room.

The building is of reinforced concrete, built with a false ceiling on each floor to allow space for a maze of wiring and plumbing. Pipes and air ducts are especially numerous, while out of sight, because each suite is equipped with three or four sinks and often more plumbing fixtures.

QUIETNESS

Planning was done with a view to quietness. Ceilings are finished with acoustic plaster and floors are either rubber-based or lino. The fact that the solid plaster partitions are used adds to this quality inasmuch as they are sound-resistant.

Non-combustible materials have been used throughout, but nonetheless the building is equipped with two steel fire escapes.

The main lobby, which leads to elevators and ground-floor offices, is separated by glass from a pharmacy and a prescribing optical clinic. X-ray offices have walls sheathed in lead.

The lobby has Terrezzo wall panels with built-in flower boxes.

Each doctor was permitted to arrange his own interior decoration and as a result, except for the front windows, all of which are draped with uniform fibreglass curtaining, there is a wide variety of color in the offices.

Exterior of the building features painted concrete panel and column construction. The foundation was built on reinforced concrete piles.

In spite of the fine furnishings installed in every waiting room, only one suite, a lower ground-floor apartment, will be occupied. It is leased to the engineer-building manager, W. J. Collins.

He will supervise the oil-fired, electrically controlled hot water heating system.

HANGOVER BOWL

VANCOUVER (BUP) — A Canadian side defeated a comonwealth side 24-6 in the "Hangover Bowl" rugby game Monday at Brockton Oval.

Australia's 1955-56 wool clip is expected to reach a record total of 4,219,000 bales.

BANK SUSPECT — This woman, identified by police as Martha Robertson, told Montreal police she attempted a bank holdup to buy a present for a son she was meeting for the first time in 7½ years.

SPACE TRAVEL? 'BILGE', SAYS ROYAL STARMAN

LONDON (Reuters) — Dr. Richard Woolley flew to London Monday to take up his post as Britain's astronomer-royal and told reporters that interplanetary travel is "utter bilge."

The 49-year-old Woolley added: "But if the next war could be won by the first chap getting to the moon and by that alone, some nation might put up the enormous amount required."

Cougars Off And Running

Topple Flyers to Regain Second; Robertson, Brown, Strasser Score

Victoria 3, Edmonton 1

The new year dawned bright and promising for Victoria Cougars Monday afternoon at Memorial Arena.

It was a case of having the most the quickest as the Cats opened with a terrific assault in the first period and then defied Edmonton Flyers to get back in the contest.

Three first-period goals stood up in their 3-1 triumph over the Flyers, while victory lofted them into sole possession of second place, two points ahead of New Westminster Royals.

Playing shorthanded, with centre Skip Teal and winger Ray Ceresino sidelined with troublesome leg injuries, the Cougars figuratively "shot the works in the opening session. And they were justly rewarded.

Jim Robertson set the pattern when he parked himself in front of Giles Boisverts citadel and tipped in a pass from Wayne Brown with the game less than four minutes old.

Brown got the second as he drifted across the Edmonton blue line, took a perfect pass from Bill Davidson and gave Boisvert no chance on his hard drive.

Paul Just Kept Banging Away

But it remained for two rookies to supply the neatest counter of the day.

It was strictly a two-man passing play out of the book of the past as Don Chiupka and Paul Strasser weaved their way through the Flyer defence with Strasser on the payoff end of the pretty movement. Persistence was the finally determining factor, Strasser banging at the puck until it entered the net.

The Flyers never seriously threatened until midway through the final period. A Cougar nemesis of long standing, Ed Stankiewicz, then spoiled Marcel Pelletier's shutout bid as he rifled a hard drive into the far corner from right wing, swinging around the Cougar defence with a sudden burst of speed that caught everyone napping.

That counter set off a determined Flyer offensive but Pelletier was equal to the occasion in another sound display.

The scoreless middle period was not without its action, and not without a fine piece of officiating by referee Eddie Powers.

The extra-curricular activity began when Pelletier objected to Goose McCormack taking up a position within his crease. A high-sticking duel commenced and before it was over Nels Bulloch of the Cougars and Pete Wright of the Flyers fisted each other, but good, and everyone else, with the exception of Boisvert joined in the melee.

A Bouquet for Eddie; Iron Hand Rules

Powers played his commendable part in the proceedings when he assessed no less than seven penalties for the rucus.

Three of the penalties were of the misconduct variety with Don Poile and Chuck Holmes of the Flyers, and Jim Robertson being assessed that pennace for leaving the bench to join in the fray.

Probably because of Powers' quick action, no other trouble of a similar nature threatened thereafter.

Cougars now are idle until Friday night when they host New Westminster.

It is expected that Teal will be recovered from his injury by then. However, Ceresino's status is doubtful as his leg is badly swollen from a check he received in Friday's game here with Seattle.

The Flyers continue their coast tour at Westminster Wednesday.

They defeated Seattle Americans, 4-2, at Seattle Saturday night.

AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO YOU!

The New Year's spirit wasn't all friendly at Memorial Arena Monday afternoon. This unscheduled action occurred in the second period of the Western League hockey game between Victoria and Edmonton with Cougar goalie Marcel Pelletier defending and Flyers' John MacCormack the offender who transgressed on Pelletier's domain. Seemingly swallowing his whistle is referee Eddie Powers. (Times Photo by Strickland.)

Dramatic Finish Decides Rose Bowl

Michigan State Triumphs; Rule Controversy Brews

By HAL WOOD, United Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (UP)—The Rose Bowl game today again was embroiled in an aftermath of charges and counter charges following Michigan State's hard-to-believe 17-14 victory Monday over UCLA scored in the last seven seconds of the game.

There is no doubt about who won the game. That's already entered into the official books, with a sophomore end named Dave Kaiser the hero for his 41-yard field goal just before the final gun.

But there were some differences of opinion on these cases:

1. Did the official signal an "intentional grounding of a pass" by Ronnie Knox of UCLA, and thus indicate that Michigan State would have received two points, because the penalty would have put the ball in the UCLA end zone?

2. Was there any reason for the officials slapping a 15-yard penalty on UCLA, with less than a minute to go, for "coaching from the sidelines?". This was the penalty that put the Bruins back on their own one-yard line and ultimately led to the Michigan State victory.

According to the coaches, the officials were right all the time. The conference rules don't allow them to criticize an official.

"We were penalized 15 yards for coaching from the sidelines," said coach Red Sanders of UCLA. "I understand that it was one of our assistant coaches who kept yelling at Knox to pass. I believe the officials were right."

On the intentional grounding of a pass, there still rages a dispute. If the penalty had been called, as the official signalled, then Michigan State would have been awarded the two points and there would have been no need for Kaiser's heroic stunt.

Some claim that the pass hit a UCLA lineman, in other words an ineligible receiver. In that case, the penalty of five yards was correct. But that definitely was not what the official signalled.

Final Minutes Nerve Shattering

In any event, some of the most exciting football ever seen in a post season game was crowded into the last few minutes of this nerve-shatterer.

Michigan State was leading 14-7 midway in the last quarter and appeared to have the game salted away. Then Knox came into the battle and promptly tossed a 47-yard pass to end Jim Decker on the Spartan seven. The Bruins scored from there and knotted the count at 14-14.

But all that did was set the stage for the fireworks. UCLA had to kick off and the Spartans immediately started a drive toward the Bruin goal. It was halted on the 20 and the UCLA took over. But the penalty came and set the club back on the one. From there Knox finally had to get off a kick out to the 40.

Michigan State, then started a drive which got down to the 19 with seven seconds remaining. The Spartans were penalized back to the 24 for taking time out—when the stage was set for Kaiser. He booted the ball from the 31 through the uprights, 10 yards back of the playing field—a 41-yard kick that will go down in football history.

"Kaiser never before in his life kicked a field goal in college football," said coach Duffy Daugherty after the game. "He had tried a couple early in the season and failed. But I thought this was a good place to give him another try. From now on he's definitely our 'long' field goal kicker."

State Backfield Punctured Bruins

Prior to the all important field goal, Kowalczyk and Peaks were the running stars of the game. They riddled the Bruin line, then scored on two passes. Peaks was involved in both efforts. He caught one for a touchdown and threw a 67-yard pass to end John Lewis for the other.

UCLA capitalized on an early break at the start of the game. Earl Morrall's pass was intercepted on the Spartan 19 by UCLA halfback Jim Decker who returned it to the 16. Bob Davenport plunged over from the three. Decker converted and UCLA led 7-0 with three minutes of play gone.

It was the ninth victory for the Big 10 invaders in the 10 years of the Big 10-Pacific Coast conference pact.

Tech Keeps Great Bowl Mark Intact

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Bobby Dodd's Georgia Tech Yellowjackets won their fifth consecutive major bowl game Monday when they edged Pittsburgh, 7-0, in the Sugar Bowl.

Tech was soundly beaten in the statistics department but took advantage of an early break to score over the Pitt team in the first quarter.

Tech quarterback Wade Mitchell threw a pass to Don Ellis on the Pitt five but Bobby Grier, Pitt fullback, was called for interference when he attempted to break up the pass.

Tech was given a first down on the two and Mitchell sneaked over two plays later for the only touchdown of the game.

Maloney Maintains Point Lead

SEATTLE (AP)—Phil Maloney of Vancouver holds first place in the Western Hockey League individual scoring race for the third straight week.

Summaries released here Monday by the League show Maloney, with 52 points, two ahead of Blinky Boyce of New Westminster. Boyce was held to a lone assist in games up to and including New Year's Eve.

Steve Wituk of Calgary won "player of the week" honors with nine points on four goals and five assists. He moved into a tie for 10th place among the point-makers for the season.

Bobby Love of New Westminster, in third place for total points, is the top assist maker, with 37. Gordon Fashoway, New Westminster, and Sid Finney, Calgary, have the most goals, 26 each.

Ray Mikulan of Vancouver leads the goalies with an average of only 2.6 scored against him per game.

The high scorers including games of Saturday, Dec. 31, follow.

A's Top B's

Oak Bay Wanderers' A team scored a 3-0 victory over Oak Bay B team to win the seven-a-side rugby tournament Monday at Windsor Park.

Rafael Duke scored the only try of the game to give his team the victory in the five-team tournament.

The winners opened with a 34-0 victory over Victoria College A and Oak Bay B defeated JBAA Whites, 3-0 in their first game.

Third game of the day saw Oak Bay A down Victoria College B, 24-3 to set up the final between the two Oak Bay teams.

Mississippi Proves Too Much for Swink

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Quarterback Eagle Day, taking a fourth-down chance that would have done a riverboat gambler proud, engineered the underdog Mississippi Rebels to a 14-13 victory over Texas Christian before 75,504 Cotton Bowl fans today.

Two conversions by fullback Paige Cothren provided Mississippi's victory margin, but it was Day's daring and his running against the clock that was the turning point of the penalty-ridden game.

The performance earned Day the overwhelming nod of the sports writers as the game's outstanding back, while his teammate, guard Buddy Alliston was almost as strongly favored as the top lineman.

Cothren and sophomore reserve halfback Billy Lott punched across the second and fourth-period touchdowns from three and five yards out to pull Ole Miss into its second bowl victory in five tries—both of them, oddly, with TCU the victim.

Ole Miss was trailing 13-7 because of three and 39-yard scoring scampers by All-America Jimmy Swink and one conversion by Harold Pollard when Day took his long shot with six minutes to go.

It was fourth and three with the goal 45 dim yards away when Day called for a flat pass to Cothren that caught TCU by surprise, ate up 14 precious yards and got the first down on the TCU 31.

A pass failed and Lott was held for a yard gain by a terrific TCU line that had bottled up Mississippi's running game all afternoon. Then Day, apparently trapped behind the line on a pass attempt, streaked through the middle, wriggled away from three or four TCU tacklers and squirmed to the five-yard line.

The Rebels sprung the speedy 190-pound Lott loose around right end for the tying points and Cothren booted the all-important point with a little more than four minutes to go.

Auburn Upset

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Vanderbilt, giving away an average of 15 pounds a man in the line, came out on top in line play Saturday as well as backfield play to defeat Auburn 25-13 in the 11th annual Gator Bowl game.

Vanderbilt's hero, a unanimous choice of sports writers, as the outstanding player, was quarterback Donn Orr, who passed to Joe Stephenson for the first touchdown and ran for the next two.

Orr's remarkable recovery from an elbow dislocation that kept him out of virtually all practice sessions between the end of the season and Saturday's game overshadowed the way Vandy's linemen outplayed the Auburn wall.

Sooners Blast Terps For 30th Straight Win

By FRANK EIDGE JR., United Press Sports Writer

MIAMI (UP) — National champion Oklahoma uncorked a slick offensive with a neat psychological twist Monday to blast Maryland's craggy defences for a 20-6 victory before 76,561 fans in the Orange Bowl.

Oklahoma's first two teams, fired to a fever pitch by coach Bud Wilkinson, shared in the Sooners' 30th straight victory, the longest streak in the nation. Each eleven bolted to third period touchdowns to erase Maryland's 6-0 halftime lead. It was Maryland's first defeat in 16 games and the second Orange Bowl loss to the same Big Seven Conference champions, who won 7-0 in 1954.

Although all 22 Oklahomans shared in the victory, halfback Tommy Mcdonald inspired the first team for the first touchdown and No. 2 quarterback Jay O'Neal engineered the score that clinched the victory along with fullback Billy Pricer's two extra point kicks.

Halfway through the final period, halfback Carl Dodd intercepted Lynn Beightol's pass on the Oklahoma 18 and sped 82 yards down the sideline for the final touchdown.

The first time Maryland punted in the second half, Oklahoma set up its famed "alley of blockers" for the speedy Mcdonald, who got by all but one Marylander for a 33-yard return.

The Sooners then marched the final 46 yards in seven plays, a pass from Mcdonald to Bob Burris carried 19 yards to the Maryland seven. Mcdonald bucked to the four then on the next play swept around his right end with a pitchout to score.

The Oklahoma second team then came on the field fired up to match the touchdown. Snapping the ball every 25 seconds, so fast that the officials once had to call time out for themselves to catch up, O'Neal sent the "subs" bolting through and around every corner of the Maryland line, averaging 210 pounds a man, on a 49-yard march.

Greyhaired coach Bud Wilkinson, with the enthusiasm of a high school cheer leader, yelled and clapped his hands to get his team back into huddle the instant that the ball carrier was tackled.

O'Neal, who saved a possible Maryland touchdown in the first period with a diving tackle of Ed Vereb, scored the six points with a one-yard sneak through the middle.

Vereb, who started the game with an empty and "nervous" stomach that kept him up all night, and the terrapin defenders, led by All-America centre Bob Pelligrini, completely dominated the first two periods.

Vereb carried the ball four times for 96 yards during the half, including a 66-yard run. Only O'Neal's desperation dive that tripped the 185-pound halfback at the Oklahoma 10 kept Vereb from scoring. Three plays later Dodd recovered Frank Tamburello's fumble to end the threat.

But Vereb was not to be denied. He carried twice for 25 yards in a 39-yard Maryland march. After a 10-yard sprint up the middle, Vereb rolled out with a hand-off to pass. Finding his receivers covered, the Pittsburgh, Pa., star reversed his field and turned left end on a 15-yard touchdown jaunt with Pellegrini and end Bill Walker clearing the way.

Score by periods:

Oklahoma	0	0	14	6—20
Maryland	0	6	0	0—6

Oklahoma scoring: Touchdowns Mcdonald (4, end run), O'Neal (1, sneak), Dodd (2, intercepted pass). Conversions Pricer, 2.

Maryland scoring: Touchdowns, Vereb (15, end run).

Canucks Widen Lead

Vancouver 5, Westminster 3

VANCOUVER (CP) — A goal down at the end of the first period, Vancouver Canucks pulled past New Westminster Royals 5-3 here Monday night in a Western Hockey League game.

On Saturday night the Canucks edged the Royals 3-2 in overtime.

Bob Kabel scored two goals when Canucks needed them and Gordon Hudson, George Ford and Earl Johnson were the other marksmen. Fred Creighton, Max McNab and Blinky Boyce scored for the losers.

New Westminster goalie Bev Bentley played alertly to stop 32 Vancouver drives. His first save was especially spectacular, as he stopped Freddie Brown's shot after Brown had broken away all alone.

VISITORS START STRONG

Ray Mikulan in the Vancouver net found the first period his roughest. Creighton picked up a pass from Bobby Love for New Westminster's first score, then McNab netted after dueling with Les Lilley on Mikulan's doorstep.

Hudson scored against Bentley midway through the first stanza.

Kabel tied up the game early in the second period and put the Canucks ahead at 13.41 after Bentley had stopped four drives from consecutive faceoffs.

Ford made the score 4-2 for Vancouver early in the final period but Boyce stormed in on Mikulan from a goalmouth scramble two minutes later as the Royals threatened to come back. Johnson widened the margin again with six minutes to spare.

REGINA...ER...BRANDON BEATEN

Mosienko Sparks Winnipeg Victory

Winnipeg 5, Regina 2

BRANDON (CP) — Powered by veteran Bill Mosienko who fired three third-period goals, Winnipeg Warriors Monday defeated Regina Regals 5-2 before a holiday afternoon crowd of 2,870, biggest turnout since Regina began playing in Brandon.

Regals took a one-goal lead early in the first period but Winnipeg snapped back with the equalizer before the period ended. Warriors went ahead 2-1 in the second frame and outscored Regina 3-1 in the third period.

Paul Masnick and Mike Nykoluk, along with Mosienko, were the Winnipeg marksmen. Bill Kyle and Elliott Chorley scored for Regals.

Mosienko blasted the game wide open with his three counters. His final goal came only eight seconds after he returned to the ice from a penalty.

The game was fast and hard-fought all the way with Warriors Ed Chadwick handling 32 shots and Regals' Lucien Dechene called on for 36 critical saves.

Mosienko got his first goal at 49 seconds of the final frame while Regals were shorthanded.

He then clinched the game on a neat goal off a three-way passing play at 13.56. Just three minutes later he stepped on the ice from the penalty box, took a pass from Barry Cullen and streaked in alone for the final goal of the game at 17.44.

Thirteen penalties were handed out in the game including a major to both Winnipeg and Regina and a misconduct to Bill Bucyk of Regals. Mosienko accounted for Warriors' major penalty in a fight with Gord Strate, who served five minutes with Mosienko.

Stampeders Suffer Fourth Straight Loss

Saskatoon 4, Calgary 3

SASKATOON (CP)—Len Haley's goal at 3.51 of the overtime period gave Saskatoon Quakers a 4-3 victory over Calgary Stampeders in a Monday afternoon Western Hockey League game before 4,000 holiday fans.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Stampeders, who lead the league's Prairie division.

Saskatoon scorers besides Haley were Mid Houghton, Earl Ingarfield and Bill Folk. Ray Barry, Gerry Couture and Barry Ross tallied the Calgary counters.

Saskatoon took a 2-1 lead in the second period after a scoreless first session. The Stampeders were ahead 3-2 late in the third period but couldn't hold the edge as the Quakers staged a driving finish.

Houghton broke the scoreless deadlock at 13.27 of the second period when he fired a waist-high shot past Ray Frederick from the right side after a skirmish near the Calgary goal. Two minutes later Barry tied the count at 1-1, stealing the puck from Howie Milford in front of the Saskatoon net and giving Emile Francis little chance.

Each team was a man short when Ingarfield took Vic Lynn's pass on left wing and beat Frederick cleanly to give Saskatoon a 2-1 lead. Bill Folk started the scoring play.

Veteran Couture made a neat job after taking Sid Finney's pass to tie the score at 15-17 of the third period and seconds later rookie Ross put the Stamps ahead 3-2 on a relay from Archie Scott and Dave Duke.

Folk drove in the tying goal for Saskatoon at 17.28 on a passout by Doug Bentley. Dave Gordichuk also drew an assist.

Haley banged in the winner for Saskatoon from close quarters.

EL PASO, Tex. (UP)—Wyoming, outweighed and minus its finest player, scored two touchdowns in the final five minutes Monday to whip heavily-favored Texas Tech, 21-14, in the Sun Bowl classic before 14,000 spectators.

Rangers Like New Year —But Not So Bruins

By The Canadian Press

New York Rangers rallied for three goals in the final period Sunday night to defeat Boston 4-2 in a National Hockey League game and sweep a home-and-home weekend series with the Bruins.

At Detroit Red Kelly and Gordie Howe each scored two goals to lead Red Wings to a 5-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

The win, following Saturday night's 6-2 victory at Madison Square Garden, gave the Rangers their 18th triumph.

The second-place Rangers now have 42 points, 13 fewer than the Canadiens and five more than the third-place Red Wings. Boston remains at the bottom of the table with 25 points.

The final-period rally was the second time the Rangers came from behind in the game.

In the second period Dean Prentice tied it up after Fernie Flaman had put the Bruins out front. In the third period, Harold Laycoe again sent Boston ahead but goals by Danny Lewicki, Bronco Horvath and Larry Popein clinched the victory for Rangers.

New York goalie Lorne Worsley made 42 stops. Boston goalie Terry Sawchuk made 26 stops.

BOTH WERE FLUKES

Detroit's 12th victory marked the first time the Red Wings have bettered the .500 mark this season.

Detroit took a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Kelly and Alex Delvecchio. Kelly added a third in the middle frame and Howe scored the final two goals in the third period.

Johnny McIntyre scored the lone Chicago goal in the final period.

Kelly's goals were both flukes. The veteran redhead, converted to forward after six years as an all-star defenceman, clicked after five minutes with an off-line shot that caromed in off Al Dewsbury's leg.

His second at 6.59 of the middle frame with a 55-footer which Lee Fogolin attempted to clear, but deflected past goalie Al Rollins instead. Those were Kelly's eighth and ninth goals, but the first against Chicago.

CANADIENS WIN

Montreal Canadiens finally shook off the tenacious Chicago Black Hawks Saturday night with a four-goal splurge in the last period for a 7-3 National Hockey League victory before a New Year's Eve crowd of 13,005.

It was a hard-checking game that got rougher as it went along and by the end there was plenty of bad blood between the two teams. Canadiens lost Henri Pocket Rocket Richard and Don Marshall through injuries.

In other games Detroit Red Wings fought to a 2-2 tie with Maple Leafs at Toronto. Rangers scored their 17th victory of the season, 6-2 over Boston Bruins, at New York to equal their entire output last year.

Rangers Edge Celtic, Trail by One Point

LONDON (Reuters) — Scottish soccer dominated League play Monday, with only a few northern British teams playing as the rest took a holiday.

The full Scottish program featured clashes between the four first-ranked teams in Division A. In the day's outstanding game, the second-place Rangers shaded the league-leading Celtics 1-0. Rangers' centre forward Don Kirchenbrand scored the winning tally. The Celtics now lead by only one point and have played two more games than the Rangers.

The third and fourth-place teams, Hearts and Hibernian, played to a 4-4 tie. Both teams now are one point behind Rangers, although Hearts' better goal average gives them the edge in the placings.

Stirling Albion, the bottom team, scored its second victory in 18 games with a 1-0 lead over Falkirk by virtue of a first-half goal by Willie Timmons.

LEADERS WIN

The three leading teams in Division B—Queen's Park, Ayr and St. Johnstone—all won their games to leave positions among the front-runners unchanged.

In the English League, the major surprise was the 3-0 home defeat in Division 1 of Newcastle, the cup holders, by West Bromwich Albion.

Ronnie Allen scored three times for West Bromwich, once from a penalty shot. It was the first time in more than three months the team had won a game away from home.

Manchester City beat Portsmouth 4-1 as Bobbie Johnstone also scored three goals. Portsmouth's defences disintegrated during the closing stages of the game.

LEE'S FOUR GOALS —IN APPRECIATION

Never underestimate the power of a woman.

Bob Attends Party But Misses Dance

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Bob Grier, the Pittsburgh fullback who became the first Negro to play in the Sugar Bowl football game, attended a private party in a downtown hotel Monday night but missed the big buffet supper and dance that followed.

At the private party given for players and coaches, Grier along with others participating in the game was given a watch.

Vic Fusia, Pittsburgh assistant coach, then drove Grier out to Dillard University, private Negro college on the outskirts of the city, where he attended a dance.

"He was in high spirits when I picked him up," Fusia said. "He was doing exactly what he wanted to do. He received the invitation from Dillard and that's where he wanted to go."

The management of the St. Charles Hotel said the facilities were segrated in the 100-year-old hotel, but declined to say whether Grier was the first Negro served in any of its private dining rooms.

Fred Digby, general manager of the Mid-Winter Sports Association, admitted the hotel "made special concessions" for Grier to attend the private party.

A Pittsburgh official said other players besides Grier did not attend the buffet supper and dance, and one—fullback Tom Jenkins—did not show up at the private party.

"They were under no compulsion to attend," he said.

Second Man Hunted in Cop Killing

Suspect Believed In Toronto Area

VANCOUVER (CP) — Search for a second man wanted in the gun-slaying of a Vancouver police officer spread Monday night to Toronto.

Police said they had issued a warrant for the arrest of a former Toronto man as a material witness in the murder of Constable Gordon Sinclair, 41, shot to death Dec. 7 while investigating a routine prowler call.

Joseph Gordon, 33-year-old Vancouver salesman charged with a $26,000 bank robbery, has been charged with murder in the case. He was picked up the night of the slaying, questioned for five days and then released. He was free on $15,000 bail on the bank charge. A 21-year-old girl is also charged with holding up the bank.

City police said the Toronto man was believed to have left the city Dec. 8.

Joseph Gordon was re-arrested last week and charged with possession of a weapon after a taxi driver complained he had threatened him. The murder charge was laid Saturday. He was remanded for a week without bail.

The wanted man was reported to have fled to Chilliwack, B.C., in the Fraser Valley, then left for eastern Canada by bus.

Police said "new evidence" resulted in laying charges against Gordon and the missing Toronto man.

Rail Conciliator Known Wednesday?

OTTAWA (BUP) — Labor Minister Milton F. Gregg has indicated he may announce Wednesday the name of the chairman of a three-man conciliation board to study the dispute between the nation's railways and their 150,000 non-operating workers.

The companies and unions failed to agree on a chairman and the choice was left to Gregg. The 16 unions involved in the dispute had named David Lewis, Toronto attorney, as their representative on the board and the companies picked Montreal attorney Paul S. Smith.

Firemen Kept Out of Secret Room In Gutted Soviet Ottawa Embassy

OTTAWA (CP)—A stubborn New Year's Day fire fought in sub-zero weather amid a hampering confusion of languages and diplomatic delicacy Sunday night virtually destroyed the Russian embassy here.

An embassy official said the general-alarm fire was caused by a short circuit. It started in a top-floor office of the three-storey brick building which stands on a promontory overlooking the Rideau River in the capital's east-central Sandy Hill district.

The official, Vitali A. Loginov, counsellor and charge d'affaires, who is second in authority to Ambassador Dmitri Chuvahin, estimated the loss at $250,000. Valuable paintings, carpets and other fixtures were destroyed.

AMBASSADOR WATCHES

Firemen were called to the scene at 4.55 p.m. EST to find squads of embassy personnel carrying out armloads of documents and loading them into two black limousines. The general alarm, calling in off-duty firemen, was sounded at 6.37 p.m. The fire was considered under control at 10.52 p.m., but it was not until 6 a.m. Monday that it was declared out.

The ambassador was in the embassy when the fire broke out. He later stood stolidly outside, watching for hours as the old mansion went up in flame. A New Year's party for children of embassy staff had broken up not long before the blaze was discovered.

Embassy officials said Monday it has not yet been decided whether the Soviets will rebuild on the present site, move to rented quarters, or build elsewhere in the city.

FIRE ALARM LATE

Fire Chief John Foote, who reported the Russians invoked diplomatic immunity to keep him and his men from entering the north wing housing the highly-secret coding section, said the embassy staff apparently had tried for an hour to halt the blaze themselves before calling the fire department.

The time they spent fighting the fire alone, he said, may have doomed the building. The embassy was burning "beyond help" by the time firemen arrived.

But Loginov complained bitterly to reporters afterwards about firemen's efforts to control the blaze, which quickly engulfed the tarred roof and ate relentlessly down into the embassy.

"It took them six hours and they couldn't save the building," he said. "I am not a fireman but . . ."

It was the first time fire destroyed an embassy here and it posed a delicate diplomatic situation since an embassy is considered a piece of the country that owns it.

Chief Foote sought guidance from Mayor Charlotte Whitton, who soon arrived on the scene with Acting External Affairs Minister Martin and R. M. MacDonell, deputy under-secretary of state for external affairs.

The mayor said fire fighters "were impeded from getting equipment in until it was much too late."

Mergers Big Problem For Labor in 1956

BY AB KENT

For organized labor, 1956 promises to be the most significant 12 months in history.

Most important will be the merger into a 1,000,000-member organization by Canadian Congress of Labor and Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, which will take place in April.

Following on the heels of formation of the Canadian Labor Congress will be mergers across the country of provincial and local labor councils like Victoria District Trades and Labor Council and Victoria Labor Council.

Some local labor leaders expect considerable delay before a single labor council is set up, largely because of the expected hesitancy of individual unions now affiliated with the councils.

One spokesman said it will be the start of one of the greatest educational programs ever carried out by organized labor. Local unions will want answers to hundreds of questions concerning merger before they take part in the complicated process.

Reasonably Quick Mergers Necessary

Another union officer said he looks forward to a single Victoria labor council being formed by July. He said reasonably prompt formation would be necessary because after the national merger there will be no individual identity of TLC or CCL.

Local unions now affiliated with their separate congresses would automatically become part of the Canadian Labor Congress.

This spokesman said the feeling in B.C. labor circles is that local amalgamation should take place as soon as possible, partly for this reason. It is his feeling that the largest part of the educational program would be established at a later date.

A great advantage of the merger will be that many locally chartered unions—those chartered as individual locals directly with a national congress—will find their rightful places in national or international unions.

The problems of merger will be manifold. For instance, what will be done in the case of Victoria laundry workers' union (CCL) and Vancouver's laundry union (TLC)? Which local will lose more of its identity and which one will provide the name for the single union?

Jurisdictional Areas To Be Problem

Possibly, even though they would both be affiliated with the CLC, they may choose to remain as separate locals.

Another problem will be dues structure, the allocation of per capita taxes paid by locals to their congresses or international headquarters if they are international unions.

Jurisdictional areas will need redefinition, possibly one of the most difficult of all merger problems considering the basic difference between craft-type and industrial-type unions.

In provincial congresses will officers be paid for their services as they are in the B.C. Federation of Labor (CCL), or carry out their duties unpaid as in the B.C. Trades Union Congress (TLC)?

Whatever happens, unionists agree that the eventual bodies formed on national, provincial and local levels will embody certain aspects of both parties to the merger.

Eleven Girls Escape Industrial School

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police today sought 10 of 11 girls who escaped from the Girls Industrial institution here in two groups during the weekend.

One of the escapees, who range in age from 13 to 17, phoned to give herself up shortly after the first break.

Japanese Disaster Kills 124

NIIGATA, Japan (AP)—Mourning relatives ranged among neat rows of hooded bodies to claim loved ones Monday as authorities counted 124 dead in the wake of a wild stampede that brought a tragic end to a New Year's Day worship.

Thirty-six other persons were injured, eight of them seriously, when thousands of worshippers panicked at the Iyahiko Shinto Shrine five minutes after drums and bells heralded the arrival of a new year Sunday.

Some 36,000 persons were assembled at the open-air shrine to give thanks to their gods for good crops and good fortune during the year when the disaster struck. It came when Shinto priests, standing atop special towers flanking a 15-day stairway, began throwing out pounded rice cakes—the traditional symbol for good luck.

The solemn rite became a wild stampede as the worshippers crashed over one another in a frantic scramble to grab a cake.

A stone fence surrounding a broad, raised platform on which 6,000 to 7,000 worshippers had assembled crumbled and fell. Many of the worshippers, pushed off the platform, fell screaming to the ground. Others fell atop them.

German Soldiers Arrive in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—The first group of uniformed soldiers from Germany's new army, to visit this country, 38 officers and men, arrived at Idlewild airport Monday to study at U.S. army schools.

Led by Lt. Col. Herbert Reidel, the grey-clad contingent represents seven military branches. The men will be here from three to six months.

Fraser Valley Safecrackers Grab $2,000

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Safecrackers struck twice in the Chilliwack area Monday stealing nearly $2,000.

Funks feed store was broken into early Monday and a safe containing $1,300 was later found empty.

The Sardis post office was broken into Monday and $50 in cash was stolen along with an estimated $550 in postage and unemployment insurance stamps.

Dick Britton, postmaster, said the thieves gained entry into the building by smashing a rear window. Mr. Britton said explosives were used to break into the safe.

Queen Honors Artists, Athletes

Royal Accolades for Ballerina, Cricketers, Legless Air Hero

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth Monday honored ballerina Margot Fonteyn, mystery writer Agatha Christie and Rudolf Bing, manager of New York's Metropolitan Opera, for spreading British artistic accomplishments to all parts of the world.

The Queen also gave recognition to Sir Osbert Sitwell, member of the world-famed literary family, Shakespearean actor Paul Scofield, and historian Cicely Veronica Wedgwood in her New Year's honors list.

She created four new barons and handed out a host of knighthoods and lesser accolades. The honors reflected the Queen's interest in encouraging the arts, science and sports.

Dr. Lawrence Plewes, formerly of Toronto and now consulting orthopedic surgeon at Luton and Dunstable Hospital, Egland, was named a commander of the British Empire.

WINS COMMENDATION

The Queen's Commendation for valuable service in the air went to Flt. Lt. Gordon Price of Montreal.

Gordon Bowen, senior United Kingdom trade commissioner in Ottawa, received the companionship of the Order of Saint Michael and Saint George.

Among honors conferred upon women was that of a Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire—equivalent to knighthood — to 36-year-old Miss Fonteyn, prima ballerina of the Sadler's Wells company.

Bing, artistic director of the Edinburgh Festival and general manager of the Glyndebourne Opera here before going to New York in 1950, became a Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Similar awards went to Miss Christie, Miss Wedgwood, Sir Osbert, 63-year-old poet, essayist, novelist and short story writer, and Scofield, 33, who recently played Hamlet with a British company in Moscow.

Harry Hopman, manager of Australia's Davis Cup tennis team, also received a CBE. Two other Australians, cricketers Ian Johnson, 37, and Keith Miller, 36, were each named a Member of the Order of the British Empire.

Dr. Cyril Garbett, Anglican Archbishop of York, was raised to the peerage, but he died Saturday before the honors list became public. His death nullifies the appointment.

Three others made baron were: Col. John Jacob Astor, 69, chairman of The Times of London and member of the famed Anglo-American Astor family.

Sir Francis Raymond Evershed, 56, member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague.

Sir Frederick Godber, 67, chairman and managing director of the Shell Transport and Trading Co. Ltd.

Tom O'Brien, 55-year-old former chairman of the Trades Union Congress and a Labor MP, became a knight bachelor.

BADER GIVEN CBE

Group Capt. Douglas Bader, legless air hero of the Second World War, was awarded the CBE for inspiring other handicapped persons.

Three new companions of honor were appointed: the prime minister of Ceylon, Sir John Kotelawala; Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, winner of the Woodrow Wilson peace prize in 1924 and the Nobel peace prize in 1937; and Arthur David Waley, translator and poet, for his "services to the study of Chinese literature."

CHARGED — Mrs. Virginia Ricks, 42-year-old divorcee from Syracuse, N.Y., has been charged with the murder of fishing guide George Franklin (Tom) Knapp, 45, on an island in Newboro Lake, 35 miles north of Brockville. She was remanded to Jan. 6 after police were summoned to find Knapp shot to death.

Youths Find $37,910 In Old Box

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) —Two curious shop clerks sawed the padlock off a metal box Saturday and found $37,910 in bank notes.

The box, apparently lying for years almost unobserved in the basement of a silk shop, was uncovered while Derek Holme, 21, and Jack Freeman, 17, were cleaning.

Police said the small fortune comprises bills in denominations of $100, $50, $20, and $10, all issued in 1937.

The youths and Robert Graftstein, proprietor of the Uptown Silk Shop, are claiming the money.

Police, seeking the owners, said the notes may have been cached when the building was used as a restaurant. The notes are valid currency.

A FINEST-QUALITY, 4-TRANSISTOR ZENITH
Amazingly small, compact, efficient . . . backed by an ironclad guarantee of full satisfaction . . . yet selling for less than one-fourth the price of many comparable brands!

SO SMALL it can hide under a man's necktie! SO LIGHT it can be worn in a woman's hair!

Ever since the miraculous discovery of tiny but expensive transistors, Zenith and its dealers have shared a dream with Canada's hard-of-hearing.

It seemed an impossible dream. A vision of superlative hearing aid efficiency, clarity, convenience, operating economy—and all at a price so very low that these benefits could be enjoyed by every hard-of-hearing person, in every walk of life.

Today, this "impossible" dream has become a reality! Just imagine . . . a highly efficient, full-powered 4-transistor hearing aid so small it can be worn in a woman's hair, as a brooch, or under a man's necktie. Yet it does not sell for $250 or $300, as do many other makes, but for only $50 complete. This, thanks to Zenith's 36 years of electronic experience and "know-how" plus the willingness of Zenith dealers to accept less profit per sale, in order to bring the security, happiness and opportunities of better hearing within easy reach of all.

Operating costs, too, are amazingly low. Just one tiny dry-cell battery, available everywhere, operates the "50-X" for about 10¢ a week instead of $1.00 to $2.00 a week for vacuum-tube instruments. These savings alone can pay the entire cost of the "50-X" in less than a year!

But that's not all! The Zenith "50-X" is sold with a 10-Day Money-Back Guarantee. If you are not completely satisfied . . . if you do not find that it equals or excels the performance of competitive makes selling for $200 or more, simply return it for full refund. And remember, the $50 price includes everything: High-performance air-conduction earphone, cord, stock earmold, One-Year Warranty and Five-Year Service Plan. Time payments, if you wish. Act now! Former Deckhand Who Fashioned Algoma Steel Empire Dies at 81

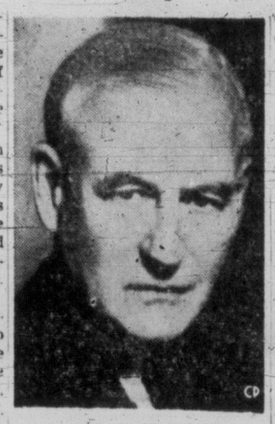
ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP)—Sir James Hamet Dunn, one-time deckhand who became multi-millionaire mainspring of the giant Algoma Steel Corporation, died New Year's Day. He was 81.

Sir James and Lady Dunn held control of Algoma and its huge interests, it is generally believed. Canadian financiers now wonder about the future control of the empire fashioned on the foundation of a once-bankrupt plant at Sault Ste. Marine, Ont.

Sir James died at noon Sunday after a short illness due to a heart ailment. At his bedside was his son and heir to the baronetcy, Philip Gordon Dunn, 50, who flew from London, Eng.



SIR JAMES DUNN

MANY VOICE PRAISE

The tributes were many. Said Prime Minister St. Laurent: "During his business career he emphasized both by word and deed his belief in the future of Canada."

Trade Minister Howe: "His contribution to the industrial development of Canada was tremendous."

Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born British newspaper magnate, in a front-page article in the London Daily Express: "A well-balanced man with wide human interests and yet that capacity for building up a huge enterprise under modern conditions. His achievements once studied will give light and leading to many a youth setting out on a career."

Mr. Dunn, son of a Bathurst, N.B., shipbuilder, started his career as a clerk in a Bathurst law firm. There he met Richard Bennett, later prime minister of Canada and still later a member of the House of Lords, and Max Aitken, now Lord Beaverbrook.

Mr. Dunn worked as a deckhand to put himself through Dalhousie University law school. He entered the financial arena in Montreal by buying a seat on the stock exchange with a borrowed $20,000.

He moved to London, England, where he founded the banking firm of Dunn, Fisher and Company. By the age of 39, he was a multimillionaire. During the Second World War he worked on secret industrial projects for the British government and for this was created a baronet in 1920.

Sir James' connection with Algoma Steel began in 1907 when he started raising new finances for the company. When the firm collapsed in 1932 he owned more than enough of its bonds to secure dominance.

Three years later he emerged as chairman, president and principal owner. With modern machinery, he turned the defunct business into one of Canada's most important steel industries.

In 1951 Sir James gained control of Canada Steamship Lines.

He was known for his lavish gifts to universities, hospitals and other institutions.

FORMER MAYOR of Jersey City, Frank Hague, 81, died Sunday. Poker-faced Hague forged a stormy path from the poverty-stricken section of his home town to prominence as iron-fisted boss of the powerful Democratic machines. So powerful was his machine that he was once elected mayor by a vote of 110,743 to 6,798.

Board Tightens Up Overtime Provision

A new order affecting payment of overtime rates has been made by the Board of Industrial Relations which will prevent employers from taking advantage of certain classes of employees.

Regardless of any other order of the board, employers must pay not less than time and one-half the employee's regular rate for all hours worked in excess of eight hours a day and 44 in the week.

Previously it was possible for an employer to avoid paying overtime rates to employees engaged in two separate duties, which when combined might total more than eight hours a day or 44 hours a week, but individually did not exceed those limits.

Under that arrangement an employer was not required to pay overtime.

Such a position is encountered in jobs such as clerk-truck driver for a single employer, both of which duties are carried out in a single day.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called *Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Three Indians Die In New Year Fire

Fires on the west coast of Vancouver Island New Year's Eve claimed three lives and destroyed a bunkhouse and its contents.

Victims of a fire at Ahousat Indian reserve 30 miles north of Tofino, were Mrs. Rose John, 49; her four-year-old daughter Caroline, and a granddaughter, Carol Swan, aged 15 months. The father and three other children escaped the flames.

It broke out shortly after midnight when a gasoline stove exploded. The frame house in which they were living burned to the ground.

The other fire, of unknown origin, broke out in a floating bunkhouse at the logging community of Tahsis, 60 miles northwest of Tofino.

It drove 17 loggers into freezing weather in their night attire, but no one was injured. Superintendent Norman Charlesworth said about $1,500 cash and all the men's personal possessions were destroyed.

LONGSHOREMAN SCORES 29 AT CRIBBAGE

CHEMAINUS — Longshoreman Dominic Luvisotto of Nanaimo, came up with a cribbage player's dream, a 29 hand while playing a game at the union office here.

Playing with Fred Higginson also of Nanaimo, while waiting for a ship to arrive, Luvisotto held the Jack of diamonds three fives and cut the five of diamonds.

The perfect hand gave Mannie Irving, union secretary and an enthusiastic crib player a genuine thrill.

"I've played crib for years and that's the first perfect hand I've seen," he said.

Chemainus Hospital Board Will Fight 'Encroachment'

CHEMAINUS — North Cowichan council has recommended that directors of the Chemainus Hospital board meet with members of the King's Daughters' Hospital development committee at Duncan to discuss matters concerning a proposed new hospital district.

Coun. A. E. Craig told council that the Chemainus board was disturbed about plans for the new hospital district in the southern end of the municipality.

Coun. Craig said the Ladysmith hospital district, encroached from the north "and now the KDH committee's plan calls for a hospital district to coincide with School District 65 (Cowichan)." This, he said, was encroachment from the south and would down down considerably the area open to Chemainus Hospital.

Chemainus Hospital board felt its area should be from the Lagoon south of Ladysmith to Westholme and including Crofton.

Nanaimo Hikes Lumber Export 15 Per Cent

NANAIMO — Almost 15 per cent more lumber was shipped from Nanaimo's assembly wharf in 1955 than the previous year.

Seventy-five deep sea vessels carried 79,498,000 board feet of lumber to many parts of the globe, but the bulk of the shipments went to British ports.

Another 3,212,000 feet of lumber was shipped by rail in 130 freight cars, some destined for Island points.

Some 2,500,000 went by rail to the B.C. mainland and Prairie points.

The assembly wharf, which is expected to be enlarged this year, has accommodation for only one ship at a time, and was occupied 190 days in 1955. Longshoremen are hired from halls in Victoria, Chemainus and Port Alberni on a work exchange system.

RECORD VEHICLE EXPORT

LONDON (Reuters) — The British Motor Corporation exported more vehicles in 1955 than any other manufacturer in the world, shipping 200,000 with a total value of $75,000,000.

Sidney Village Commission Marks Year of Progress

SIDNEY — Village commissioners, facing an active year in 1956, looked back on 12 months of progress in public works during 1955.

Largest single project was the completion of the sewage scheme, managed without an increase in taxation. A $190,000 loan will be paid for over 20 years, and $10,000 remained after the project was finished.

The system serves the whole of the village. Booster pumps and outfalls to the sea give adequate disposal.

A refuse disposal area was established on 10 acres of swamp land on which, garbage will be buried and covered. The level of the land will be raised four feet, and when fully reclaimed will be made into a park. It is estimated the land will be worth $30,000.

The commission noted that during the year 4,350 feet of concrete sidewalk four feet in width were laid. Plans call for the laying of sidewalks throughout the whole area.

Hard-surfacing was carried out on Shoreacres, First, Third and Fourth Streets, and the provincial government is at work on Fifth Street.

Cruise to Orient Planned For HMCS Ontario, Sioux

The RCN's first major training cruise of 1956 will start from Esquimalt Harbor Jan. 27, subject to final approval by Ottawa, and involves the cruiser Ontario and most of the destroyers and frigates in the Second Canadian Escort Squadron.

Ontario, with HMCS Venture cadets aboard in her "floating classrooms" for junior officers, will visit San Francisco and Pearl Harbor, then ports in the Far East.

She will be accompanied on the full cruise by the destroyer Sioux.

The destroyers Cayuga and Athabaskan, and all frigates except those undergoing refit, will leave at the same time but will return from Pearl Harbor, while Ontario and Sioux carry on to the Orient.

The newly-converted and modernized anti-submarine destroyer escort, Crescent, will join the first half of the cruise if trials are completed in time.

She is now undergoing shakedown trials and may not be ready in time for the Pacific exercises.

Two other long cruises are planned for Ontario later in the year: one to the Mediterranean, and one up the coast to Alaska.

Official announcement of cruise plans is expected from naval headquarters at Ottawa within a few days, when approval is formally granted by the department of external affairs.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Another year, another dollar, as they used to more or less say war before last.

Well, I don't know about you, but I am looking forward, with keen anticipation, to 1956.

For many years, I have been naive enough to look forward, with varying degrees of anticipation, to the dawn of each new 12-month cycle, operating on the general theory The New Year certainly couldn't be any worse than the Old Year.

This current year, though, can't help but be a smashing success.

The year 1956, you see, is bissextile.

A year which is merely sextile would, in this day and age, have a pretty good chance of making the all-time hit parade.

But a year which is bissextile—and 1956 certainly is, that is for sure and without doubt—a year which is bissextile is a year you can nominate for the one Most Likely to Succeed.

It is a well-known fact the continuing battle of the sexes is the most fascinating battle of any year. And in a bissextile year, isn't it obvious the battle will be twice as fascinating?

Also, the quote weaker unquote sex will have twice as much chance of winning.

A bissextile year, such as 1956, is made to order for the quote weaker unquote sex. Because, in case you have been mildly curious as to what I am nattering about, bissextile, the noun, is the sixth of the calends of March, better known as the 24th day of February, which was reckoned twice every fourth year by the intercalation of a day. Or, as it is usually called, Leap year.

Bissextile, the adjective, is nothing more nor less than pertaining to Leap year.

Thus I am looking forward, with unusually keen anticipation, to dear old bissextile 1956.

Somewhere down the dim corridors of time, the first member of the quote weaker unquote sex hit upon the idea of adopting the bissextile year as her own—a year in which she could take out after the quote stronger unquote sex with no holds barred.

Since then, female tactics have been so refined and improved they hardly need a bissextile year to bring them home in front by six lengths, breezing. Nevertheless, it IS nothing less than fascinating to watch them go in a bissextile year, when the male is not allowed to appeal to the referee for alleged unfair tactics, or, indeed, even ask for time out.

Go to it, bissextile 1956 and the quote weaker unquote sex. I'll be watching from my seat in the bleachers.

Married sextion, that is.

Police, Firemen Asking Boosts In 1956 Wages

City firemen and city police will ask wage increases this year.

City manager C. C. Wyatt said today the city has received notification to that effect from the firemen, and it was unofficially learned that similar notification has been mailed to the Victoria police commission by the police union.

This brings to almost 600 the number of civic employees in four separate unions who will bargain with the city in 1956.

They are International Association of Firefighters, local 730; City Hall Employees Association, No. 388; Employees' Protective Association Union, No. 50, and Victoria Police Federal Union, No. 251.

Only the inside workers (City Hall Employees' Association) so far have met with the city and made their demands known. They are asking a 5 per cent boost, which if granted would cost the city about $20,000 annually.

MEET NEXT WEEK

Mr. Wyatt and other city officials will meet with the outside staff and firemen's representatives probably next week.

Victoria police advised the police commission before the Dec. 31 deadline they wished to reopen their wage contract. The announcement is expected to be made at the next police commission meeting.

All four unions, and the union representing the nine organized public health nurses employed by the city, had to signify intention before the last day of December. Only the nurses have not been heard from.

Current contracts with the four unions expire February 28.

The city also deals with the carpenters' union and the electrical workers' brotherhood, but these contracts are not due to expire until April and August, respectively, and affect relatively few employees.

Scott Petition To Go Before Vancouver Judge

A Vancouver judge, Mr. Justice A. E. Lord, will hear the petition of W. A. Scott to have the civic mayoralty election declared invalid, it was announced today by Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Macfarlane, who was asked by Mr. Scott to set a date for the hearing of his petition, said he felt an outside justice should hear the case because it involved many persons whom he knew.

The judge will come to Victoria on Jan. 16.

Mr. Scott, in his petition, wants the election declared invalid on the grounds that he was intimidated into withdrawing from the race for mayor.

Burglars Get $200 Jewels, Scared From Store Looting

Petty thieves and burglars were active here over the holiday week-end.

About $200 in jewelry was stolen from a private home on Fairfield Road while the occupants were away. A would-be thief apparently lost his nerve and left men's clothing piled at the entrance of a Douglas Street store.

Mrs. G. Hutchinson, 1311 Fairfield, reported to police Monday that someone had ransacked a bedroom, broken her son's train set and made off with $200 in jewelry from her home.

A burglar kicked a sizeable hole in a door of Spencer's Stores Ltd., Douglas Street, squeezed through, piled up some $239 worth of men's clothing, and then took off leaving the loot, apparently scared away.

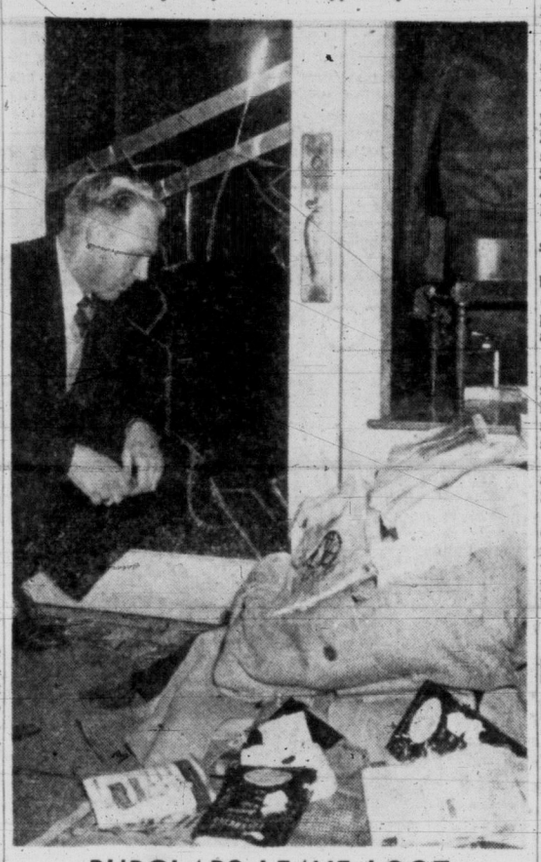
The break-in was discovered shortly after 7 a.m. today.

The heap of clothing stacked by the door included four topcoats, 15 sports shirts, eight pair of socks, two sports coats and three other coats.

Smashed glass from the door had spewed well back into the store. Police said entry must have been made by a small person, and it had been a tight squeeze at that.

Theft of a $250 camera from a private home was reported Saturday.

Several other minor thefts occurred, and someone threw a rock through a rear window of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Douglas and Bay Street branch. No entry was made.



BURGLARS LEAVE LOOT

Thieves who smashed their way through door into Spencer's store, 1420 Douglas, over the weekend apparently were scared off before making clothing haul. They piled loot near doorway in readiness for removal. Assistant manager Lloyd Davies is shown surveying damage. (Times Photo.)

Two Youths Face Burglary Charges

Duncan RCMP said today charges have been laid against two youths in connection with a weekend break-in at Silver Bridge Inn, near Duncan.

About $25 worth of liquor was reported stolen. —RCMP said most of the liquor has been recovered.

It was the second break-in over the weekend in that area.

Burglars made off with about $190 worth of tires after smashing a side window at Midway Garage in downtown Duncan.

Chinese Sunday School Wins Newly-Created Memorial Award

Chinese United Church Sunday school became first holders of the Edward Lynch Memorial award for attendance at the first annual United Church Sunday school rally New Year's Day.

Presentation of the award, a giant picture, Salman's "Christ at Heart's Door," was made by the Rev. William Allan to the Rev. C. Y. Chow, minister, and Miss Muriel Lee, superintendent of the Fisgard Street Sunday school.

The Chinese group, 37 students and teachers, had 100 per cent attendance at the rally.

Over 1,800 children, teachers and parents crowded First United Church.

Esquimalt United Church, with 50 per cent attendance of 187 enrollment, was in second place, and Victoria West United Church, with 45 per cent of 115 enrollment, was in third place in the contest.

WHOLE YEAR

In succeeding years the award will be made for average attendance at Sunday school over the whole church year. The award has been given by First United Church in memory of Mr. Lynch.

Central feature of the novel rally was the singing of favorite inspirational hymns by individual Sunday schools as the roll call of the 16 groups was made.

The rally was conducted by the Rev. D. R. Pilkey, chairman of the area committee for Christian Education. Object story was given by Earl Darling, superintendent of the junior department, Fairfield United Church, and the Bible reading was given by John Gilliland of Metropolitan United Church Sunday school.

A massed junior choir under the leadership of Mrs. Margaret Dixon and accompanied by Mrs. Rod Webster sang "I Saw Three Ships."

Dr. Ken Wright, superintendent of First United Sunday school, greeted the rally and expressed the welcome of his church to those who attended the giant first rally.

TV Store Gutted By Fire

Fire of unknown origin gutted the interior of a two-storey business building at 1100 Pandora early Monday and caused damage unofficially estimated at $10,000.

"A few" television sets and some repair equipment belonging to Coast Electronics Ltd. retail television were destroyed in the blaze, a spokesman for the firm said.

Interior of the building was charred and fire ate through the roof.

Firemen battling the blaze which broke out at about 4 a.m. were hampered by extreme heat and strong winds.

Gusts of wind of 40 to 50 miles an hour fanned the flames, creating a danger to nearby buildings.

Heat stopped firemen from entering the ground floor of the building, and they were forced to fight the flames through second-storey windows for a time. Smoke was heavy.

It was thought at one time that the roof would collapse.

Main floor of the structure was occupied by the retail television firm. A second floor apartment was not occupied.

Firemen rummaged about the charred interior of the building today in a search for cause of the blaze.

They were unable to ascertain the cause and a member of the provincial fire marshall's office was to investigate this afternoon.

Darrel Pringle, manager of the television firm, said the largest loss would be service stock. He said there were only a "few" television sets and radios in the premises.

The loss was covered by insurance, he added.

The building was not a total loss. One fire official said the building could be repaired.

Two pump trucks and a ladder wagon responded to the call, which came in at 4.13 a.m. The last truck returned to the station at 5.30, but firemen were in attendance at the scene until nearly 8 a.m.

The provincial fire marshal's office is also expected to open investigation today into a $50,000 fire which roared through Colwood Timber Mills Ltd. early Saturday morning.

The investigation was ordered after Langford Fire Chief Rod Bayles said arson was suspected.

Survey Ordered Into Island's Hospital Needs

B.C. Government has ordered a sweeping survey of the hospital requirements of Vancouver Island, it was learned today.

Field work for the survey was started late in December, and will start in earnest this week. It is expected to take five or six months to complete.

Survey will be carried out by the research staff of BCHIS and will determine future hospital construction on the entire island.

Affected is "all the settled areas" of the island. Only places the survey will not cover are isolated centres on the west coast.

No new hospital construction will be undertaken until the survey has been completed.

The study will be similar to that carried out last year in the lower mainland.

POPULATION STUDY

Researchers will study population shifts, records of patients gathered over past years, industrial and residential potential of the various population centres, and other factors.

Also included in the study will be transportation problems, existing hospital facilities, and chronic bed facilities.

The survey was ordered following announcements by several Island hospitals, notably the Royal Jubilee, Nanaimo General, and hospitals in the Cowichan area, of new expansion projects.

"Various hospitals were faced with building programs, and we felt we should determine where the greatest need existed, and to establish a guide for future building," said an official.

Nurserymen Refused Aid By Government

The B.C. government has turned down a request for financial assistance by nurserymen who suffered losses in the November frost, J. H. Eddie, Vancouver nurseryman, said today.

He said he was so informed by Agriculture Minister K. W. Kiernan.

He said the minister indicated the cabinet has decided to turn down similar requests by berry growers, vegetable and holly growers.

Some 50 nurserymen in the lower mainland, the Okanagan and Vancouver Island were affected by the frosts. Mr. Eddie said they estimated total losses in capital outlay at $350,000.

Mr. Eddie said the cabinet apparently turned down the request for loans because members considered there was no stopping such assistance once it started.

TO SPEAK HERE — John Fisher, well-known Canadian broadcaster and newly-appointed executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association, today accepted an invitation from Publicity Commissioner George I. Warren to address the annual meeting of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, Feb. 24. "I am delighted to accept," he said in a telegram from Ottawa. A native of Sackville, N.S., Fisher took over his new post today.

Receptions Attract Record Attendances

A record attendance of well-wishers was reported at various New Year's receptions in Greater Victoria.

Largest crowd appeared at Government House where Lieut.-Governor Frank Ross shook hands with more than 1,300 guests.

The total was actually reduced from last year but the vast increase in attendance at other receptions more than made up for it.

From 11 a.m. onward citizens walked, took buses or drove to Government House, parking cars over an area of several blocks. Guests filed through the main doors and were routed through the drawing room by RCMP officers in full dress uniform.

LIGHT MUSIC

The reception was carried off with dignity. Moving in single file, each guest was greeted by the lieutenant-governor. A small orchestra played light music. Tables laden with cocktails, coffee and sandwiches stretched the length of the room.

Callers represented every profession, the armed services, industry and commerce. Many were retired pensioners.

Sharp at 1 p.m. the orchestra played the Queen and guests withdrew.

One veteran of many New Year's Day receptions at Government House said: "It is the quietest I've ever attended . . . and certainly one of the most pleasant."

At City Hall, callers jammed the corridors and drinks were served to well over 450 persons, an increase of 50 over last year. It was the first official appearance of Mayor P. B. Scurrah.

City manager C. C. Wyatt said the affair "Made a favorable impression on all who attended."

About 500 people attended a naval reception at HMCS Naden Wardroom where they were greeted by Rear Admiral Hugh Pullen and other senior officers.

Military, civic and government officials were also among the visitors.

Three army receptions, at Gordon Head, Bay Street Armory and Work Point Barracks also reported a larger attendance than other years.

One official said he thought the fact that New Year's dinners had been held the day previous permitted more people the opportunity to "make the rounds."

The same popularity was experienced by officers of the RCAF Urban Centre on Yates Street.

Among the hosts at army and RCAF messes were Lieut.-Col. J. C. Cave, Work Point; Lieut.-Col. Jack Fawcett, Canadian Scottish Regiment, (aided by Honorary Colonel of the Scottish, Robert W. Mayhew); Major Harry Gwilliam, 5 Harbor Defence Battery; Lieut-Col. W. H. V. Matthews, 2nd Batt. Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, Camp Gordon Head, and Sqdn.-Ldr. R. D. Higgins, RCAF, Urban Centre.

Q.—Will you please tell me when the title "Reverend" was first conferred upon men, and by whom? H.B.H.

Men's Fashions Have Taken To the Italian Influence

By PENNY SAVER

The Italian influence has taken the women's fashion field by storm the last while, so I wasn't surprised to see that men's wear, which has been lightened and brightened with new color and stylings, has also taken to the Italian way. For example, the Italian boy collars, square cut, fly-away designs, give that look of studied casualness that is the sign of a well-dressed man. These collars may be worn closed or open, and are very smart either way. In pastels with scattered, mannish prints, or in solid colors, these shirts are selling at $3.95 and $7.95. This season promises to see many more of these shirts in town, 'cause they've caught on so well so far. Long sleeves or short sleeves, they'll be the pride of the man-in-the-house.

Dare I suggest party clothes now, just after the holiday celebrations? The silver and white brocade shoes I saw in my travels are so attractive, though, that I'm sure you'll forgive me. They're the dearest little flat dancing slippers that will spark up any outfit. One style has a banding of silver leather while the other style is plain brocade. The price is right, too. They're $5.50.

If your spare room is in need of new covers for the bed, you'll be interested in the gay, new comforters that are being sold in a local store. They're covered with dainty cotton prints that will harmonize with your room decor and will make that bed one of the most comfortable. These thick quilt comforters measure 60 by 72 inches, and cost $4.95. At a wonderful price like that, you can afford to buy new ones for other beds in the house, too.

Are you back to nibbling turkey again? New Year's dinner leftovers of fowl, cranberry sauce and the many tidbits that come forth at this time of year are probably in evidence in your house, as they are in ours. To add a new twist to the serving and a terrific tang to the taste, take a few hints from the little recipe book that you can buy in one of Victoria's book shops. It gives a new slant to the problem of leftovers, so that it's really fun to experiment.

Now, here's something that everyone needs at this time of year. There'll not be much saving done in many homes, 'cause Christmas bills will soon pour in. Nevertheless, saving can still be part of the routine—even if only a small part. So . . . here's a little something to induce you to gather your change and save it for a rainy day (or another Christmas season). It's a porcelain piggy bank. There's a red posy on the side, and the pig has a very satisfied look on his face. The cost? It's 98 cents.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Enrich Your Life Through Friendship

Here is another old thought for the New Year: "If a man does not make new acquaintances as he advances through life, he soon will find himself left alone. A man, Sir, should keep his friendships in constant repair."—Samuel Johnson.

"To let friendship die away by neglect and silence, is certainly not wise. It is voluntarily to throw away one of the greatest comforts of this weary pilgrimage."—Samuel Johnson.

The attitude of friendship just naturally attracts friends of all ages and talents. If we really like people and approach them with trust we will find that we add new friends each year we live. With this same attitude we also will keep our old friends.

We are all very busy and few of us have time to see our friends as often as we would like or to write to them as often as we wish. Nevertheless, if our feeling for them is truly warm and steady and we do not let them down in times of great joy or great trouble, they will be forgiving of seeming neglect. They will know that we love them by the light in our eyes or the feeling which somehow gets into ink.

You may say, "I do not have an opportunity to make friends." This is seldom true, although in some situations it is difficult and does take some effort. You always have neighbors, whether you live in an apartment or a house, unless you are on a very isolated farm. Even then there is probably a nearby church, or I feel sure that it would be possible to prod other farm women in the same situation into a social or philanthropic organization which would bring friends into your life.

I never collected china or glass but for years I have been collecting my favorite people, and they have been so wonderfully rewarding. I am always so glad to see them that they are just bound to be glad to see me.

Enrich your life in 1956 by seeing and writing to more of your old friends and by making new ones. Do not allow fatigue and rush and worry, or a small income, or furniture that needs redoing, or the lack of new clothes, or anything else rob you of the comfort and stimulation and pleasure of friends. Association with others will refresh you and wind you up to a new start.

Young Nurse Used Candy Making To Help Put Her Through School

By TERRY FRENCH

"It put me through grade school and high school, and it certainly paid better than babysitting."

So explained Miss Torrie Salter, when the subject of her candy-making was discussed. The daughter of a minister, Torrie tells you, "of course, being a minister's family, there wasn't an excess of funds. In any town you'll find the minister's children with odd jobs to provide themselves with spending money, and money to help out."

Candy-making was Torrie's job—and one that she thoroughly enjoyed. During school days, she experimented with recipes and came up with some original ones that would really make your mouth water. The addition of flour and baking soda to ingredients is her own idea.

Since candy-making is no longer her "source of revenue" as it was in school (she is now a graduate nurse, who has been in Victoria since September), she doesn't mind passing on some of her secrets.

Torrie Salter . . . her home town is Hansport, N.S.

"Maybe some high schoolers will benefit from them as I did," she says.

The following recipes, her favorites, are dedicated to the faint-hearted who think that they can't make good candy. So gather 'round with spoons and saucepans, but remember that those who taste will want more, so be prepared for encores.

Let's start with good old-fashioned fudge. Discouraged because your fudge has been too sweet and grainy? Here's a secret Torrie discovered: a little flour (about 2 level teaspoons) to 2 cups of sugar will give your candy the desired creamy texture. Remember, however, to stir often, as flour tends to stick to the bottom of the pan. To counteract that overly sweet taste, try adding ½ teaspoon baking powder to the mixture as soon as it comes to a boil. This applies to all types of fudge except chocolate.

Ready! Here's a good basic recipe.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE

Two cups brown sugar, ¾ cup light cream, 2 teaspoons flour, 2 squares chocolate, shredded, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract, pinch salt, ½ cup walnuts (optional).

Combine sugar, cream, salt and flour and half of butter smoothly in saucepan. Place over medium heat stirring frequently until boiling point is reached. Following this, stir occasionally to prevent flour from sticking to bottom of pan. Cook until mixture forms a soft ball when tried in cold water, about 238 F. Remove from fire, add vanilla and rest of butter and let stand at room temperature until lukewarm.

Now beat with heavy wooden spoon until mixture becomes thick and loses it's gloss. Quickly add nuts and pour three-quarter inch thick on buttered pan or platter.

As a variation, ¾ cups strong coffee (strained to eliminate grounds) may replace chocolate. (If coffee is desired, reduce cream to ¼ cup). Another variation consists of 1 cup coarsely chopped marshmallows added just before pouring candy on buttered platter.

MOLASSES TAFFEE

3 tablespoons butter, 1⅔ cup molasses, pinch salt, 1 cup sugar, ½ tablespoon vinegar.

Melt butter in pan: add molasses and sugar, boil over moderate heat, stirring constantly after first five minutes, in order to prevent scorching. Cook until mixture reaches 250 F. or becomes brittle when tested in cold water. Add vinegar and turn out on buttered platter. When mixture cools keep turning edges toward centre in order to prevent them from becoming too hard.

When candy is cool epough to handle, pull until light in color. Shape into a rope and cut with sharp knife or scissors. This is a sticky business. If you find yourself becoming "stuck up", oil fingers or dip frequently in cold water. A few drops of oil of peppermint or a teaspoon of vanilla may be added for flavoring if desired when removing candy from stove.

The above recipes have been well-tested and if followed carefully are guaranteed to make your reputation as a candy maker. As you go along, you may want to experiment with various colors and flavors. Too, you will find that jellies, stuffed fruit and fondants offer many fascinating possibilities.

Well, there's a good start. Solid recommendation, basic recipes, and a sweet tooth. Good luck, and happy candy-making!

Marriage to a Diabetic May Cause Financial Strain

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Marriage to a girl whose health is poor can be a serious burden for a young man to assume.

Hurlock

(Q)—"My son, who is 21 years old and in the army, has just become engaged to a girl who has diabetes. The doctor told my son they would have to get married before she was 25 years old in order for them to have children. She was in the hospital for three months for treatments.

"My husband called the doctor to get more information about her condition and then told my son he was assuming a great responsibility to marry a girl who is a diabetic. My son foolishly told his fiancee about this and now the girl wants to get married out of town, without the families, just to spite us.

"My husband has a heart condition and had a slight heart attack after he heard this. We are very upset about the whole matter, as he is our only son, and we feel the girl is trying her best to take him away from us. What can we do?"—Mrs. T. R.

(A)—I think you should try to make peace with your future daughter-in-law right away before things go from bad to worse. She is, unquestionably, annoyed about your discussing her health with the doctor and she is ready to spite you in any way she can.

Go to see her, preferably alone, when she and her mother will be home. Explain why you wanted to know about her health and tell her you were doing what you did to spare her any embarrassment. It is most unfortunate that your son told her about the conversation your husband had with the doctor but, now that it has been done, try to heal any wounds or hurt pride it has caused.

I am sure this girl and her mother will appreciate that you are concerned about her health and that you want to do all you can to help the young people face a situation which may cause great financial strain on your son. Tell her that you will help her with the work at times when she is not feeling well and with the care of any children she may have.

This girl's physical condition may improve with good care and if she is happy. It may not turn out to be as bad as you now anticipate. But, if there is friction in the family, both she and your husband will suffer from it.

Elizabeth Hurlock will answer your personal questions. Address her in care of this newspaper.

VITAL OMISSION

TORONTO (CP) — A flustered bride and groom kept 50 guests waiting at a church here for three hours while they scrambled after a marriage licence which they said they didn't know was necessary.

A government official came to the rescue by granting the licence and waiving the customary three-day waiting period.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

You like a bargain? What woman doesn't? But the fashion bargain that doesn't fit, is in an off-color or is a poor style for you is no bargain even though it's tempting.

An evening snack: cut leftover rolled pastry into inch-wide strips and wrap around pitted, cooked prunes stuffed with chopped almonds. Bake them in a hot oven until lightly browned and that's it.

New, elasticized boots for rainy weather slip on over your shoes with glove-like fit. Lightweight, too.

Two-day-old fruit pies will taste oven-fresh if they are re-heated in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for seven to 10 minutes.

Leftover meat, broth, gravy and stuffing should be refrigerated immediately after the meal is served. It is a fallacy that placing hot foods in the refrigerator will cause them to spoil.

Hebbert-Bacon Vows Heard In Candlelight Ceremony

Miss Janice Myrtle Bacon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bacon, 2304 Trent street, was married last Thursday evening to Robert H. B. Hebbert, son of Mrs. Jessie Hebbert, Saanichton, and the late Lieut.-Cmdr. W. B. Hebbert, in a ceremony in Metropolitan United Church.

Before the ceremony, the matron of honor and bridesmaid, carrying lighted tapers, came up the side aisles to the front of the church, and lit the four candelabra. The church was then lighted by the muted glow of 28 flickering candles and two blue-misted Christmas trees. The attendants returned to the vestry, where they exchanged the tapers for bouquets and the candlelight ceremony proceeded.

Dr. A. E. Whitehouse of Vancouver and Dr. F. E. H. James officiated at the wedding. The setting was two standard baskets and a floral centrepiece of white chrysanthemums.

Organist, Charles Palmer, accompanied the soloist, Miss Marlene Vance, who sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and "My Heart Ever Faithful."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a period gown of white velveteen with fitted long-line bodice and skirt slightly en train. The neckline was fashioned in a low round styling and the sleeves were long. A very bouffant skirt was accentuated at the hipline and a multi-tiered crinoline with hoops created a bell-shaped silhouette. Her fingertip veil of white nylon tulle was held by a wide lace-covered satin band etched with pearls and rhinestones. She wore a pearl necklet, a gift of the groom and her bouquet was of red roses and white chrysanthemums.

Matron of honor, Mrs. K. A. Lamont, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid, Miss Wendy Budge, were gowned identically in waltz length dresses of red velveteen, fashioned with three-quarter sleeves, V-necklines and Empire waistlines. The full gored skirts were posed over crinolines with hoops. They carried red velveteen muffs topped with small bouquets of white chrysanthemums. Their headbands were of matching blooms.

Best man was Angus Maclaren of Vancouver, and ushers were Walter Patterson, Langford and George Hebbert, Maple Bay.

The reception was held in the church parlor, where the bride's table, covered with a linen cloth, was centred with a three-tier cake on a silver tray flanked by silver candelabra and vases of pink roses. The cake was topped with a tiny bouquet of bebe roses. Albert Sullivan proposed the toast to the bride's future happiness.

Mrs. Bacon was gowned in a blue velveteen dress with white accessories and fur neckpiece. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Hebbert wore a black and gold brocade gown with black hat and white gloves and corsage of gold feathered chrysanthemums.

For her honeymoon, the bride chose a tailored brown suit with brown leather purse and shoes, beige gloves and hat and teal blue coat. Her corsage was of split gold chrysanthemums.

Following a honeymoon trip up-island, Mr. and Mrs. Hebbert will live in Courtenay for one month, following which they will sail from New York, Feb. 16, to spend a year in England.

FROM JAPAN—This skirt in crimson all-wool felt has a black stripe on white running from waist to hem and light-colored appliques on both sides of the waist.

You Can Feed 10 People on $34 a Week

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia health department says you can feed a family of 10 in the province for as little as $34.04 a week, and it tells how to do it.

The nutrition division gives that figure for Truro. The same food would cost $34.99 here, $38.46 in Stellarton, $36.61 in Kentville, $36.33 in Sydney and Bridgewater and $35.03 in Yarmouth.

For scoffers, the department has issued a booklet which tells how to cut food costs without sacrificing a family's health.

WISE BUYING PAYS

"For example," said Dr. Juanita H. Archibald, division director, "the nutritionists show that for every dollar spent wisely on food, the careless buyer can spend easily as much as two dollars for the same food value."

Under the plan, the average cost of feeding a moderately active man in Nova Scotia ranges from $3.49 a week in Yarmouth to $4.42 in Stellarton. A moderately active woman would spend from $3.16 to $3.57 a week.

The cost of feeding children varies from $2.02 for the one-to-three-year-old group to $3.80 for the 10-to-12-year-old group. Teen-agers' grocery bills start at $3.75 and reach $5.18 for 20-year-olds living in the most expensive provincial centre.

SAMPLE MENU

Armed with these facts the nutrition division compiled a sample menu for one week, designed to give all the necessary foods and at the same time provide variety and low cost.

As an example, the menu suggests the week start with grapefruit, bran flakes, poached eggs, toast, jam, milk and coffee. For lunch or supper, cottage cheese, graham wafers, salad greens, oatmeal cookies and milk.

Dinner would consist of roast pork, baked potatoes, boiled carrots, butterscotch pie, milk, tea or coffee.

Meat is suggested for five days a week—Wednesday is traditionally reserved for baked beans and Friday as fish day.

One suggestion to cut costs is to figure the cost per serving. A table shows that a pound of round steak costs 89 cents, there are four servings to a pound, a cost of 21 cents a serving.

Elizabeth Anne Millner a Bride In St. Mark's Church, Ganges

The picturesque church of St. Mark's on Salt Spring Island was setting for the marriage Monday afternoon of Elizabeth Anne, only daughter of Capt. and Mrs. T. A. Millner, "Summerland," Ganges, and Philip George, second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. E. Gilbert, Beckenham, Kent, England.

Escorted up the aisle by her father, the slender fair-haired bride made a lovely picture in a floor-length gown of white satin brocaded with lily of the valley. Worn over a clinoline, the full skirt fell in soft pleats from a fitted waistline, and the molded bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and long, tight-fitting sleeves. The bride's waist-length veil of illusion net was caught to her head with a band of white feathers and she carried a round bouquet of red carnations and white heather. Her only jewelry was an heirloom locket belonging to her grandmother.

Colors of the seasonal decorations in the little church were repeated in the scarlet taffeta gowns worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Mary MacLean of Vancouver and Miss Claire Collison of Victoria, and in their bouquets of holly and silver ribbons.

Their full-skirted strapless dresses featured tiny jackets with stand-up collars, and small pleated headbands of scarlet taffeta and silver sandals completed their ensembles. The groom was supported by his brother, Richard Gilbert, Youbou, and the bride's brother, Blake Millner, ushered.

The ceremony was performed by Archdeacon G. H. Holmes, and the hymn, "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us" was sung by the congregation.

Many friends and relatives gathered at the home of the bride's parents for a reception, where they were assisted in receiving guests by Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Bayles of Langford, uncle and aunt of the groom. Mrs. Millner wore a beige wool tailored frock with soft pink hat and black accessories.

Maj. C. D. Tweedale of Vancouver, proposed the bride's toast, following which the young couple cut the three-tier wedding cake, flanked by tall white candles in silver candelabra.

For her going-away costume, the bride chose a Harris tweed suit in light brown with winter white hat and coat and black accessories. Following a honeymoon in Portland, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert will make their home at 4122 W. 13th Ave., Vancouver.

Charlotte Joins Men At Governor's Levee

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,000 callers filed through the crimson-and-gold Senate chamber Monday to shake hands with Governor-General Massey at his annual New Year levee.

Attired in formal morning clothes and attended by his aides, Mr. Massey received statesmen, diplomats, chiefs of military staffs and their officers, and a few members of the general public, at the foot of the Speaker's throne.

Visitors walked to military airs played outside the Senate chamber by red-coated members of the governor-general's foot guards band. Carillon bells chimed tunes from the Peace Tower where the governor-general's standard flew in bright noonday sunshine.

The levee, in Canada an unbroken tradition begun by early French colonial governors and continued by English-speaking governors-general, is with a few exceptions attended by men only.

Exceptions were Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, who came wearing her gold chain of office over a grey and black dress, a scattering of women armed forces officers.

Queen Grants Clemency to 3 Murderers

LONDON (AP)—The Queen Monday night granted royal clemency to a condemned murderer—the third time in three days she has acted to save a man from the gallows.

Home Secretary Gwilym Lloyd-George, the Queen's sole adviser on the death penalty, announced the royal reprieve for John Bancroft, 28-year-old coal miner due to be hanged Monday for battering a young child to death in a rage over its crying.

On New Year's Eve Lloyd-George announced reprieves for two other murderers awaiting hanging—salesman John Berry who killed his 21-months-old son, and Adam Nuttall, who killed his wife.

Sentence on all three men was reduced to life imprisonment.

ANITA EKBERG

RIPPING!

Under It—Just Anita

LONDON (AP)—There it was, a gay New Year's Eve party at the swank Berkeley Hotel . . . balloons bursting, champagne corks popping and in walked actress Anita Ekberg.

Anita, Sweden's answer to the ice and snow, was wearing an expensive, tight-fitting, velvet gown.

All eyes turned to her as she walked across the foyer. Then—zip! The stitches gave way and the gown started towards Anita's toes.

She flung her arms across her body to hold the wayward dress up and raced 20 paces to an anteroom.

A woman eyewitness later gave this description: "Under it was—just Anita. She reclined in the near-altogether for some 15 minutes while willing helpers buzzed around making running repairs."

Said Anita, once more tidy and all that:

"I like tight dresses. But after this . . . ."

Canadian Helps Recreate Epic Of RCAF's Legless Hero Pilot

LONDON (CP) — The bulky chap with the half-moon of a jaw and the burning brown eyes lifts himself tenderly from a chair, takes a tentative step forward and stops abruptly, his face contorted in pain.

"Good heavens!" he exclaims wrathfully. "This is absolutely impossible."

"That's what they all say the first time," says an attendant quietly, adding: "I think you ought to face it that you'll never walk again without a stick."

And the man in the blue hospital robe replies bitterly:

"Damn that. I'll never walk with one."

"REACH FOR THE SKY"

That is a key scene from "Reach for the Sky," the J. Arthur Rank film based on Paul Brickhill's book of the same name about Douglas Bader, the legless man who became a legendary hero in the Second World War. The film is nearing completion and probably will be released in the spring of 1956.

Group Capt. Bader was born in London 45 years ago. He lost both legs after a flying accident in 1931, his right leg being amputated just above the knee and his left leg six inches below. The scene in the hospital fitting room recreates his first clumsy efforts to use artificial limbs.

In real life Bader did learn to walk again, and he never used a stick, an astonishing achievement. When war came he swept aside all resistance, went back to flying, legs or no legs, and shot down 22 enemy aircraft before he was taken prisoner.

In the film Kenneth More—of somewhat the same stocky build and happy-go-lucky temperament—plays the part of the cocky, indomitable wing commander who laughed at danger, flouted all the rules, talked back to top brass and pioneered new flying formations. Muriel Pavlow plays Thelma, the tea-shop waitress Bader met and married after losing his legs.

During the war Bader took over a browned-off group of Canadian pilots, in 242 Squadron, and whipped them into a cohesive force with a formidable fighting record. One of Bader's Canadian flight leaders, Stan Turner, is played by 26-year-old Lee Patterson, formerly of Vancouver and Oshawa.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

What is the correct procedure when both sides are willing to bid to a fairly high level? Should you double the opponents, make a further bid of your own, or simply pass?

If your hand is substantially better for offence or worse for defence than your partner can reasonably expect, make a further bid of your own. If contrariwise, you are substantially better for defensive purposes than your partner can reasonably expect, double the opponents. If your hand is just about what your partner should expect, simply pass and let your partner make the decision for the partnership.

Opening lead—♣ K

If we apply these simple rules to today's hand, we cann see very easily where West went wrong. South made his doubled contract of four hearts without the slightest difficulty. To make it worse, East and West could have made either five clubs or five diamonds instead of letting their opponents make a doubled game contract.

When it was up to West of make a decision after the bid of four hearts, he should have considered what his partner knew about the West hand. The vigorous bidding of the opponents made it quite clear that West's takeout double was towards the minimum size rather than towards the maximum. West had no particular message to convey about his defence strength or about his offensive strength. His hand was completely described by his previous bidding, and he therefore had no reason to act at all at this point.

If West had passed, East would have had no problem at all. The East hand was far better suited to offence than to defence, and East would therefore have made a further bid without hesitation.

East's best bid is five clubs, which West would pass. Even if East bid five diamonds, however, this contract would be made. If South then carried on to five hearts, the North-South partnership would be out of its depth and a profit would result for East and West.

Nixon Appointed Fire Marshal To Succeed Walker

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today announced the appointment of Basil Orme Nixon, of Vancouver, as B.C. fire marshal, replacing William A. Walker, who retired at the end of the year.

Mr. Nixon joined the fire marshal's office in 1942, as assistant fire marshal. He has been deputy fire marshal for a number of years.

Mr. Walker's retirement came after 41 years' service in the police and fire marshal's branches of the provincial government.

Mr. Bonner said that Mr. Walker's career should be "recognized by all as an outstanding example of public service which men and women of the civil service perform.

QOR's Seeking Interior Recruits

A small advance party of officers and men from Second Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, leaves Camp Gordon Head Wednesday to set up temporary recruiting headquarters at Vernon.

Next Tuesday, a party of 100 men, Battalion Bugles and a weapons display will be sent as a recruiting party to the interior city. They will travel there to several smaller centres in the area in the battalion's first post-war recruiting drive.

Permission to recruit men for themselves was granted Canadian units late last year, and the Queen's Own is the first unit to put a drive into operation.

Other points in B.C. will be visited during the year.

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill will return to southern France for a further holiday about the middle of this month, it was authoritatively learned Sunday. The 81-year-old statesman recently returned from a long autumn holiday at Cap d'Ail, near Nice.

1955 Weather? Let's Forget With Hope of Never Again!

Weatherman William Mackie today finished totting up his 1955 weather records, then slammed the book closed with a fervent "never again—I hope".

The year came within a smidgeon of being the coldest in 57 years of weather recording with a mean temperature of 47.6 degrees. All-time low average for a year is 47.5 degrees, set in 1916.

Normal yearly mean for Victoria is 49.9 degrees.

A new monthly low of 39.2 degrees was set in March, April equalled the all-time low for the month of 45.5 degrees, July set a new low mean of 56.6 degrees, and November went into the books as the coldest on record with a mean of 38.8 degrees.

NEW LOWS

New record low minimum temperatures were set in March and November—19.3 and 12.5 degrees respectively, and May's maximum of 61.6 degrees was the lowest ever.

However, all was not misery. August set a new sunshine record of 368.8 hours, the previous record being 350.3, set in 1931. It also was the only month of the 12 in which the mean temperature was not below normal.

Statistics for the year were as follows: rain 28.97 inches, normal 25.86; snow 28.4 inches, normal 11.5; total precipitation 31.81 inches, normal 27.01; sunshine 2,064.3 hours, normal 2,195.9.

December statistics were as follows: mean temperature 38.2 degrees, normal 41.4; maximum temperature 49 degrees, Dec. 25; minimum temperature 24.3 degrees, Dec. 18; minimum on the grass 20.1 degrees, Dec. 18; rainfall 4.53 inches; normal 4.66; snowfall 7.9 inches, normal 1.3; total precipitation 5.32 inches, normal 4.79; number of days with rain 19, or normal; sunshine 50.4 hours, normal 64.5 hours.

Damaged Ship Reaches Here On Own Power

The damaged Canadian freighter Walvis Bay, escorted by Island Tug & Barge's deep-sea towboat Sudbury, reached Esquimalt Harbor from Tahsis under her own power early Monday afternoon.

The freighter incurred underwater damage Friday, and number one hold was flooded with 25 feet of water.

Salvage crew aboard Sudbury at first intended to apply temporary patches, which would have taken nearly a week to make fast. But survey showed the bulkheads were holding and the rest of the ship dry. As the flooded hold was filled with lumber, this helped support the bulkheads, and it was decided to bring her down the coast "as is."

SOUNDINGS

Frequent soundings were taken in all holds to make sure the bulkheads were holding.

Longshoremen today started unloading a deckload of lumber preparatory to drydocking of the ship. She has 4,500,000 feet aboard, consigned to Australia.

Full extent of the damage, and cost of repairs, will not be known until Walvis Bay is drydocked, Thursday or Friday.

In the men's race, sailed in Davidsons, MacLaren led the field of 13 boats all the way, but Barnes made a real race of it, losing by a matter of inches.

In the women's races, also sailed in Davidsons, Elizabeth Baess was first and Leslie McNeill second. There were six starters.

The Sabot race for juniors was won by Rob Denny, with Chris Scott second among six entries.

Trucker Dies After Racing For Fire Aid

SALMON ARM, B.C. (CP)—A truck driver raced 16 miles to this north Okanagan valley community to give a fire alarm New Year's Eve. He collapsed and died after completing the call for help.

C. S. LeFleuvre, 46, was visiting with his wife and family at the home of William Rhodes at Sicamous, about 240 miles northeast of Vancouver.

When fire broke out in the Rhodes' home, Mr. LeFleuvre drove the 16 miles to the nearest fire brigade at Salmon Arm. After telling of the fire, he collapsed and died from a heart attack. No one was injured in the fire but the house was destroyed.

TUG-OF-WAR SEEN

84th Congress Resumes in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 84th Congress returns today for what is shaping up as a seven-month tug-of-war for political advantage.

Its election-year problems are big and numerous, including such touchy matters as tax cuts, farm prices, social security expansion, aid to schools, assistance to foreign nations, and highway construction.

It will tackle these problems in an atmosphere crackling with politics, for on the floors of the Senate and House of Representatives will be fought the preliminary battles in the war between Democrats and Republicans for control of the White House and Congress in next November's elections.

No one expects politics to be relegated to the sidelines in a year in which the voters will choose a president, a vice-president, 32 senators and all 435 representatives.

Democrats go into the new session in control of both branches of Congress and with high hopes of winning the White House. They outnumber Republicans 230 to 203 in the House and 49 to 47 in the Senate, with two Democratic House vacancies.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books? Then ask Andy?

Andy, who is a pixie, not a person, will answer two questions daily submitted by child readers of Canada and the U.S. Children who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive as prizes, for the main question, either a 16-volume set of "The Children's Hour" or a 20-volume set of "The American People's Encyclopedia." Prizes for the secondary question will be an "American People's Encyclopedia Year Book" or a year's subscription to "Treasure Trails" plus "Andy's Everyday Encyclopedia."

Address your questions to "Ask Andy" Victoria Daily Times, Victoria.

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of The American Peoples Encyclopedia to Bonnie Jean Nicodemus, aged 11, of Newton, Kansas, for her question:

Why Do They Have So Many Hot Springs in Iceland?

If you lived in Iceland, chances are your school would have no heating bill. You would bathe in a pool of warm water all year round. And no one would pay to heat the water. The furnace that heats your home would need no stoking. Through the long winter nights and the long summer days the hot water would stay as hot as you wished. And all for free. You would eat bananas, figs and lettuce greens, all grown in hot houses kept warm without fuels.

For this strange island is provided with an endless supply of boiling water. It gushes up from the ground in countless hot springs. It breaks through the mountains and dashes down the slopes in steaming streams. And the people lead this wonderful hot water off into pipes to do all sorts of jobs. Some of the pipes even warm farm dirt, helping to grow green crops.

The north of this wonderful island touches the Arctic Circle. Its southern shores are brushed by the warm Gulf Stream. Bitter gales strip it of tall trees. Few trees in Iceland grow taller than a man. The summers are cool and the winters are mild.

The island gets its character from a crown of mountains and a bleak central plateau. Iceland has been called the land of fire and ice. It has plenty of both. Much of its central plateau is covered in fields of frozen snow the whole year long. The fire is in volcanoes. Iceland has over a hundred volcanoes, many of them active.

From time to time the active volcanoes pour forth molten lava. The seething rock melts the ice and new streams gush down the slopes. But most of the time, the volcanoes just smolder forth plumes of smoke and steam from their tall tops. Their heat and fury remains buried deep underground. Below their cones, the volcanoes have roots far below the surface of the ground. There the seething lava waits in tunnel cracks and crevices.

Down there too is groundwater. It trickles down from the frozen glaciers and snowfields above. This water comes in contact with the heat and seething rocks below. It is heated, boiled and sometimes burned to scalding steam in the roots of the volcanoes. Some of this water bursts forth in hot springs. Since the root of the volcano never cools, the Icelanders have their hot water day and night all year round.

Some of the hot water is trapped in geysers. It spouts forth from time to time in great gushers. Iceland has countless geysers.

* * *

Andy sends a copy of The American Peoples Encyclopedia Yearbook to Larry Miller, aged 13, of Elyria, Ohio, for his question:

How does a fish extract oxygen from the water?

A fish uses his gills much as you use your lungs. Your lungs are a spongey mass of cells, air pockets and bloodvessels. The walls of the bloodvessels are very thin. The blood in them comes very close to the air in the tiny tunnels and pockets. The blood can draw the oxygen right through the cell walls.

The fish's gills are where you would expect his ears to be. They are a mass of fringes below a strong round cap. He swallows water in the same manner that you breathe air. The water is sent flowing through his gills as air is sent flowing through your lungs.

His bloodvessels, too, can reach through cell walls and grab the oxygen he needs to keep going. However, the oxygen you breathe from the air is not blended with any other gas. There are other gases in the air to be sure. But, though mixed together, each gas is free and on its own. Hydrogen and oxygen combine to form molecules of water. The fish cannot get his oxygen by breaking these molecules apart. He depends on free oxygen in the water.

This free oxygen gets into the water as air and water mix. This happens in waterfalls, tides, dashing waves and water currents. There are always more fish where the water is turbulent. For there is more oxygen there for them to breathe.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—Active demand for barley, prompted by export sales, highlighted trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange which saw all grain prices move higher.

Fair trade also developed in flax, where exporters also made purchases. Local trade showed in rye, while oats received domestic shipper support. Hedges were liberal in all grains.

Parcel-lot sales of barley went to the Continent and parcel-lot of flax to the United Kingdom. October flax was the only month of that contract to show on the board.

Weekend export loadings of Canadian wheat totalled 262,000 bushels, including 180,000 to the United Kingdom and small lots to Ecuador, the Netherlands, Belgium and Hong Kong.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were unchanged from Friday.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat bounced ahead for gains ranging to more than two cents at times on the board of trade today. Activity expanded sharply from its recent low level.

The burst of strength in wheat was reflected at one time in other cereals. However, feed grains had difficulty hanging onto earlier increases. Rye remained firm and several futures set new seasonal peaks.

Buying in wheat stemmed from belief that Congress would take action to bolster prices. It also was pegged on continued dry weather in the winter wheat belt.

Wheat closed 2 to 2⅜ higher, March 2.12-2.12⅛, corn ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, March 1.28⅞-¾, oats unchanged to ⅜ higher, March 66, rye ½ lower to 1¼ cent higher, March 1.24¼.

Cash wheat: None; corn: No. 3 yellow 1.25-28; oats: No. 1 extra heavy white 71¼; barley nominal: Malting choice 1.30-40; feed .85-98.

Canada's Economy 'Like Jet Aircraft'

NEW YORK (CP)—The Herald-Tribune, in a special section devoted to Canada, says the Canadian economy "could be compared to a jet aircraft with an accelerating rate of climb."

But the newspaper, in the lead article of its 10-page annual review of the Canadian economy, adds:

"The pilot of the jet knows his plane's performance capabilities, but the pilots of the economy don't. Consequently they are a little nervous about a nine-per-cent increase in the gross national product and a 12-per-cent rise in credit buying, and they are starting to throttle down."

CAUTION IN CREDIT

The Herald-Tribune sums up the 1955 Canadian economic year as one of "continued expansion and growth," but notes that the Bank of Canada began applying brakes to credit as a precaution against inflation.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, in a message to the newspaper, says: "Throughout 1955 Canadians have made further notable strides in the development of the extensive natural resources with which their land is endowed.

"Conscious of their responsibility as a sovereign nation, their desire is to apply this national wealth not only to their own social betterment, but also to further the cause of peace and human welfare in other parts of the world."

1,000 CHECKED —ONE CAUGHT

Vancouver (CP)—Only one impaired driver was picked up by police New Year's Eve although police estimated they checked more than 1,000 cars at roadblocks.

One traffic official described it as the quietest holiday weekend in his memory.

Woman, 81, Victim of Car Crash

Accidents Kill 14 in Province

An 81-year-old Saanich woman died in hospital early Monday, victim of a highway mishap at Cadboro Bay Road and Lauder Avenue on Friday night.

Mrs. E. Page, 2675 Arbutus, was the Island's second traffic victim of the New Year's holiday weekend. Her death was listed as the 14th traffic fatality in Greater Victoria in 1955, the fifth in December.

Mrs. Page was taken to hospital from her home about five hours after a car driven by her husband bounced off a small culvert and went into the ditch while turning on to Lauder at 5.15 p.m., Dec. 30. Police reported Mrs. Page's head hit the windshield.

A coroner's inquest will be held in McCall Bros. funeral home at 11.30 a.m. Wednesday.

Holiday weekend accidents killed 14 British Columbians, according to The Canadian Press and British United Press compilations.

Traffic accidents and fires each caused four deaths, while one man died from a heart attack caused by excitement at a fire. Two persons died of asphyxiation, an infant succumbed to domestic gas poisoning, and one man drowned.

The toll compared with 12 persons killed violently in British Columbia during the Christmas holiday weekend.

Traffic victims, in addition to Mrs. Page, were:

HITS TRUCK

Mrs. Elsie Pohto, 25, killed in a car-truck crash at Alert Bay, Saturday night. Five others were hospitalized from injuries received when the car ran into a parked truck on the town's main street.

Conrad Elyolfson, 19, Port Moody, was killed early Sunday when the car in which he was riding skidded on the Ioco oil refinery road and slammed into a front yard.

Fire destroyed a house in the Indian village of Ahousat, about 130 miles northwest of Victoria, early Sunday. Mrs. Rose John, 49, perished in the flames with her four-year-old daughter Caroline and 15-month-old granddaughter, Carol Swan. (See Page 12)

In the Interior, Mr. LeFleuvre, 46, of Sicamous died of a heart attack Saturday after driving 16 miles to report a fire which burned down a friend's home.

An old-age pensioner, Henry Olson, died Saturday from scald burns he received at his lonely cabin four miles from Salmon Arm last Tuesday.

Elaine Ecly, 15 months, died in suburban Burnaby in Vancouver Sunday from the effects of domestic gas poisoning. Other members of the family escaped unharmed.

Donald Roy Johnson, 28, and an unidentified 17-year-old girl died of asphyxiation or suffocation in a Vernon hotel room, police reported Sunday.

NEW MAYOR SWORN IN

AN EDITORIAL

Announcing: World's Tallest Totem

A FEW WEEKS AGO the government announced that the work of Mungo and David Martin, the Indian carvers, was being suspended because of a lack of funds.

This distinguished father-and-son team, inheritors of a great British Columbia cultural tradition, faced three months of unemployment, until new budget appropriations came into effect.

Today—after consultations with the Martins, the Hon. Ray Williston, and Mr. Wilson Duff of the Provincial Museum—The Times is happy to announce a new project which promises to be the greatest challenge of the carvers' career, and a fitting climax to 75-year-old Mungo Martin's lifetime in this ancient art.

The Times will spearhead a community drive over the next three months to have the Martins carve "THE WORLD'S TALLEST TOTEM."

* * *

Strange as it may seem, the world's tallest totem today is not in British Columbia, the home of the great Indian art, but in a downtown museum in Toronto — the Ontario Provincial Museum. This totem is 86 feet high.

The second highest is in a public park in Tacoma, Wash. This is advertised as "the world's tallest totem," but it is not. It was cut from a 105-foot tree, but a substantial sector of it is underground. Experts say that the section above the ground is 75 feet high, making it second to the totem in Toronto.

Mungo and David Martin and their assistant, Henry Hunt — represented by Wilson Duff — have entered into a contract with The Times to carve the "World's Tallest Totem" over the next three months.

* * *

On completion of the project, The Times will turn it over to the City of Victoria with the proposal that it be erected on some prominent headland in Beacon Hill Park, where the mighty totem will be visible by sea, land and air, as an inspiring landmark of our city.

Monies to finance the carving — an estimated $4,500—will be raised through the news columns of The Times and administered by financial officers of this newspaper.

In order to make the "World's Tallest Totem" a community-wide project, The Times is inviting subscriptions from individuals as well as businesses; from school children to "60-up" groups; from arts and crafts clubs to major lumber enterprises, who will be asked to help The Times find a cedar which will show at least 100 feet of totemic carving above the ground.

* * *

To provide the widest possible base for contributions, and ensure that every group in the community is represented, The Times will issue "World's Tallest Totem" shares at 50 cents apiece, and will start the fund by subscribing 200 shares (or $100) today.

Only enough shares will be issued to cover the net cost of the project.

These shares will entitle holders to watch the progress of the carving in Thunderbird Park over the next three months, and to attend the dedication ceremonies when the totem is completed.

At that time a scroll bearing the names of all shareholders will be buried in the base of the totem.

* * *

Mayor Percy Scurrah has commended the project "as a very public-spirited effort by the Times . . . bound to become a splendid tourist attraction." And, in a letter to the Times today, Education Minister Ray Williston says:

"I am pleased to see that you plan to make use of the abilities of these men. This will effectively bridge the employment gap until money is provided for their salaries in the next fiscal year.

"I am sure that your project will bring added publicity to the City and to the (totem) Restoration Project as a whole. The progress made thus far has only been possible because private groups have always stood ready to share responsibility for this work with the Government. All of the trees, which have been used in the carving program, were donated by interested firms doing business in this area. . . .

"May I commend your paper for sponsoring the carving of the largest totem pole in the world. I am sure the project will be a success."

Donations should be sent to "The World's Tallest Totem," with name and address, care of The Times, Victoria. Your share certificates will be mailed out shortly.

Coalition Moves Follow Indecisive General Election

PARIS (UP) — Popular vote for the main political groupings in 88 of the 90 French metropolitan departments showed:

Communists—4,532,896 votes; 150 seats.
Republican Front (Mendes-France)—5,094,536; 173 seats.
Centre-Right Front (Faure)—5,478,489; 199 seats.
Gaullists—750,064; 19 seats.
Anti-Tax Poujadists—2,163,391; 52 seats.
Other Rightists—397,823; 4 seats.

PARIS (UP)—The forces of rabble-rousing anti-tax crusader Pierre Poujade and those of the Communists made sensational gains today in crucial national parliamentary elections that all but killed hopes of a stable government for France.

Pierre Mendes-France's Left-Centre Republican Front ran better than expected, but it trailed the Right-Centre Front of Premier Edgar Faure and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. The remnants of the Gaulists were nearly wiped out.

The results meant that no single party gained a majority of seats in the new national assembly. The only hope of forming a new government will be another coalition, perhaps by the forces of Mendes-France and Faure, or of Mendes-France and the Communists. Mendes-France, however, already has rejected a Communist offer to join forces, describing the suggestion as an "insult."

150 REDS ELECTED

Unofficial results for 574 of the 594 seats at stake at home and overseas gave the Communists 150, the Republican Front (Mendes-France) 173, the Centre-Right Front (Faure) 199, and the Poujadists 52.

These results include 19 Gaullists, who were expected to split about 15 to 4 in favor of Mendes-France, and four members of the National Rally party, who probably would be pro-Faure.

However, allocation of such splinter-party seats to the two big groups will not be definite until the voting trends of the new assembly are known.

110 DEPUTIES OUSTED

The French voters registered a massive protest against their humpty-dumpty governments of the past 10 years. They threw out 110 deputies from the last assembly.

But, ironically, the vote assured more instability than before. If a new government is to be formed when the assembly meets Jan. 19 there will have to be more political horse-trading of the type which bred previous instability. In addition, the outcome raised the spectre of more elections.

The Communists emerged as France's largest party in assembly seats as well as size, although their popular vote dropped slightly. The party received about 24 per cent of the total vote, compared to more than 25 per cent in the last election in 1951.

Poujade's percentage zoomed from nothing to 10.9 per cent.

The handsome 34-year-old stationery salesman was not himself a candidate, but he put the largest number of candidates in the field and said they would be "hanged" if they failed to obey him. Poujade's enemies called him an anti-Semite and a "Fascist."

FRANC FALLS

Stocks slumped on the Paris Bourse. Gold climbed from 445,000 francs an ingot to 460,000. The French franc fell on the Zurich exchange.

At stake in Monday's elections were 544 seats from metropolitan France, plus 50 from overseas, making a total of 594. Additionally, New Caledonia with one seat votes Jan. 8 and Oceania, with one seat, votes Jan. 29, making a total of 596. Algeria, with 30 seats, did not vote because violence there caused the elections to be postponed indefinitely. This gives a total of 626 seats in the new assembly.

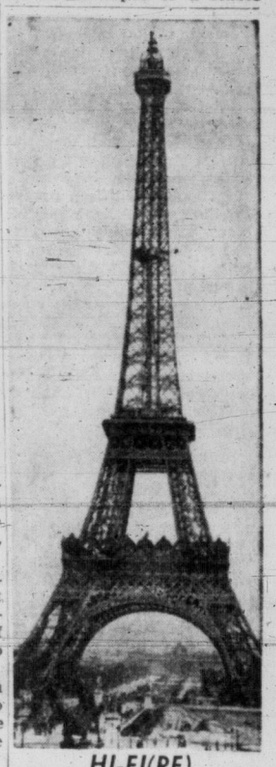
POUJADISTS JUBILANT

The most surprised men in France were the Poujadists themselves. They had bragged they would win 30 seats, but they hardly expected 51.

Georges Rosieres, Poujade's propaganda chief, said at the anti-tax leader's 15-room chateau outside Paris: "We shall stir things up in that Assembly."

Former premier Paul Raynaud said the elections taught three lessons:

(1) That the French constitution must be changed immediately to strengthen the executive; (2) that the rules of the National Assembly must be drastically tightened, and (3) that the Assembly must immediately vote a new electoral law.



HI-FI(RE)

Famed landmark of Paris, the Eiffel Tower, caught on fire today from overworked television cables installed to broadcast election returns. Firemen dashed up its 1,710 steps and extinguished blaze before serious damage. The tower erected in 1889 is one of most profitable tourist attractions in French capital.

1 Dead, 7 Hurt As Pickets Battle Police

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—At least seven persons were hurt and one man died, possibly of a heart attack, in a flareup of violence this morning at the strikebound Westinghouse plant here.

Police arrested about 70 persons taking part in a mass demonstration at the plant's five gates.

Automobiles were overturned at each of the gates. Sheriff's deputies said the trouble started as they sought to break up the mass picketing and that striking members of Local 746, International Union of Electrical Workers, threw stones and damaged squad cars. Windshields of a number of other cars also were reported broken.

Among those in the county jail are union members from Cincinnati, Mansfield and other Ohio cities, officers said. Police quoted some of those arrested as saying they came here for a business meeting.

Jailers said "billy clubs" and stones were found on some of those arrested.

Five Killed In Manitoba

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—A New Year's Day two-car collision near St. Pierre, Man., claimed its fifth victim early today.

Traffice accidents and fires claimed 52 lives in Canada during the New Year holiday weekend.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

LORD JESUS, who hast loved us into life, help us to live in Thy love. Clear as the sun in the heavens may Thy love be to everyone who waits on Thee. In its warmth and brightness may our souls bear the blossoms of holiness and the fruits of loving service. And may the fullness of Thy love be the end toward which all our hopes are turned.—Rt. Rev. George C. Pidgeon, D.D. Toronto, Canada, past-moderator, United Church of Canada.

ON MIDDLE EAST CRISIS

Eden Calls Cabinet To Emergency Talks

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden called his cabinet today to discuss the growing crisis in the Middle East and to consider opposition demands for parliamentary debate on the government's policy of selling arms to the Arabs and Israelis.

Eden assembled his ministers after meeting the new Labor party leader, Hugh Gaitskell, and turning down a request that he invite the Kremlin to help maintain peace in the explosive Middle East.

The cabinet meeting preceded an emergency conference Wednesday between Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and British ambassadors to eight Middle East countries who were suddenly ordered back to London.

Accompanying the diplomatic activity was a warning by Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion that the Jewish state must be ready for imminent war with her Arab neighbors. Ben-Gurion told his parliament, however, that war would not be "unavoidable."

Ben-Gurion announced Monday that national service in the Israeli army will be extended to meet the danger of attack from the rearming Arab nations.

Ben-Gurion, who is also defence minister, said the period of national service in the army will be increased from its present 2½ years to 3½.

PRESS CRITICAL

Britain's press, meanwhile, is keeping up a barrage of criticism against the Eden government over revelations that old British tanks and other surplus war goods have trickled through Belgium to the Middle East.

The government issued a statement pledging anew to do all in its power to prevent a Middle East arms race. At the same time, it partially lifted its recent embargo on war-surplus goods, saying such goods could be shipped abroad if governments concerned could guarantee the material would not be reconditioned and resold for military purposes.

In response to Gaitskill's request for a "new approach" to Russia on Middle East issues, Eden said he already had made futile overtures to the Russians—who have been busy wooing the Arab world and channeling arms to Egypt.

The Soviet answer, Eden said, "was not in the Geneva spirit."

Traffic Toll In U.S. 336

CHICAGO (BUP) — Holiday traffic deaths set a record for a three-day New Year's celebration, but an all-out safety campaign saved 70 lives.

The United Press count showed that 336 persons died in traffic accidents.

It wasn't close to the 420 predicted by the National Safety Council. The council estimated that the final New Year's death tally would stop at about 350.

New Vancouver Chief Re-Assigns Top Aides

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police Chief George J. Archer said today he will not hold daily meetings with the press as has been the custom here.

"I am sure that only an atomic bomb or a war will bring me into a future press conference," the former RCMP superintendent said at a press conference.

Chief Archer, who officially moved into his office today also announced changes in the titles of two senior officers in the 750-member force.

Assistant Chief Gordon Ambrose now would be deputy chief and Traffic Superintendent Alan Rossiter was appointed executive staff superintendent.

Ambrose will be in charge of the actual operation of the department and Rossiter will handle administrative or "paper work" affairs, Chief Archer said.

No other changes in executive positions were contemplated at present.

Either Ambrose or Rossiter would release major policy news to the press and the new chief expected rarely to talk to reporters in the future.

However, he was arranging to meet the editors of Vancouver's three daily newspapers in the next few days.

"If there is any strained feeling between the police and the press, I am sure we will be able to do something about it," the 58-year-old chief said.

Gains by Reds Split France

Coalition Moves Follow Indecisive General Vote

PARIS (UP) — Popular vote for the main political groupings in 88 of the 90 French metropolitan departments showed:

Communists—4,532,896 votes; 150 seats.
Republican Front (Mendes-France)—5,094,536; 173 seats.
Centre-Right Front (Faure)—5,478,489; 199 seats.
Gaullists—750,064; 19 seats.
Anti-Tax Poujadists—2,163,391; 52 seats.
Other Rightists—397,823; 4 seats.

PARIS (UP)—The forces of rabble-rousing anti-tax crusader Pierre Poujade and those of the Communists made sensational gains today in crucial national parliamentary elections that all but killed hopes of a stable government for France.

Pierre Mendes-France's Left-Centre Republican Front ran better than expected, but it trailed the Right-Centre Front of Premier Edgar Faure and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. The remnants of the Gaulists were nearly wiped out.

The results meant that no single party gained a majority of seats in the new national assembly. The only hope of forming a new government will be another coalition, perhaps by the forces of Mendes-France and Faure, or of Mendes-France and the Communists. Mendes-France, however, already has rejected a Communist offer to join forces, describing the suggestion as an "insult."

150 REDS ELECTED

Unofficial results for 574 of the 594 seats at stake at home and overseas gave the Communists 150, the Republican Front (Mendes-France) 173, the Centre-Right Front (Faure) 199, and the Poujadists 52.

These results include 19 Gaullists, who were expected to split about 15 to 4 in favor of Mendes-France, and four members of the National Rally party, who probably would be pro-Faure.

However, allocation of such

ON MIDDLE EAST CRISIS

Eden Turns Down Demands of Labor

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden tonight rejected Labor party demands for a full-scale parliamentary debate on the Middle East before he goes to Washington for conferences with President Eisenhower.

Eden's decision, announced after a special meeting of his cabinet, drew an angry reaction from Hugh Gaitskell, new leader of the Labor opposition.

Gaitskell had made a personal demand that MPs be recalled from their Christmas recess earlier than Jan. 24, when they are due to assemble.

Eden's plan to issue a government white paper dealing with leaking of British war surplus material to the Middle East later was described by Gaitskell as "most unsatisfactory."

The cabinet meeting preceded an emergency conference Wednesday between Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and British ambassadors to eight Middle East countries who were suddenly ordered back to London.

Accompanying the diplomatic activity was a warning by Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion that the Jewish state must be ready for imminent war with her Arab neighbors. Ben-Gurion told his parliament, however, that war would not be "unavoidable."

Ben-Gurion announced Monday that national service in the Israeli army will be extended

AN EDITORIAL

Announcing: World's Tallest Totem

A FEW WEEKS AGO the government announced that the work of Mungo and David Martin, the Indian carvers, was being suspended because of a lack of funds.

This distinguished father-and-son team, inheritors of a great British Columbia cultural tradition, faced three months of unemployment, until new budget appropriations came into effect.

Today—after consultations with the Martins, the Hon. Ray Williston, and Mr. Wilson Duff of the Provincial Museum—The Times is happy to announce a new project which promises to be the greatest challenge of the carvers' career, and a fitting climax to 75-year-old Mungo Martin's lifetime in this ancient art.

The Times will spearhead a community drive over the next three months to have the Martins carve "THE WORLD'S TALLEST TOTEM."

* * *

Strange as it may seem, the world's tallest totem today is not in British Columbia, the home of the great Indian art, but in a downtown museum in Toronto—the Ontario Provincial Museum. This totem is 86 feet high.

The second highest is in a public park in Tacoma, Wash. This is advertised as "the world's tallest totem," but it is not. It was cut from a 105-foot tree, but a substantial sector of it is underground. Experts say that the section above the ground is 75 feet high, making it second to the totem in Toronto.

Mungo and David Martin and their assistant, Henry Hunt—represented by Wilson Duff—have entered into a contract with The Times to carve the "World's Tallest Totem" over the next three months.

On completion of the project, The Times will turn

$250 Million Outlay Seen By Winters

OTTAWA (CP) — Works Minister Winters said today he will ask the forthcoming session of Parliament to boost total federal contributions toward the Trans-Canada Highway to $250,000,000 from $150,000,000.

In a year-end report on the 4,500-mile project begun in 1950, Mr. Winters said although construction was slowed by weather conditions, progress was good in 1955.

With the proposed new agreement between the provinces and the federal government to close the gaps and provide a paved road coast-to-coast, the minister said:

"We shall be pressing strongly for its completion."

At a meeting with the provinces here in November the federal government agreed to pay 90 per cent of the cost of building 10 per cent of the outstanding mileage in each province, providing the provinces maintained their outlays on the project and completed a "good" highway by March, 1961.

1 Dead, 7 Hurt As Pickets Battle Police

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—At least seven persons were hurt and one man died, possibly of a heart attack, in a flareup of violence this morning at the strikebound Westinghouse plant here.

Police arrested about 70 persons taking part in a mass demonstration at the plant's five gates.

Automobiles were overturned at each of the gates. Sheriff's deputies said the trouble started as they sought to break up the mass picketing and that striking members of Local 746, International Union of Electrical Workers, threw stones and damaged squad cars. Windshields of a number of other cars also were reported broken.

Among those in the county jail are union members from Cincinnati, Mansfield and other Ohio cities, officers said. Police quoted some of those arrested as saying they came here for a business meeting.

Jailers said "billy clubs" and stones were found on some of those arrested.

Traffic Toll In U.S. 336

CHICAGO (BUP) — Holiday traffic deaths set a record for a three-day New Year's celebration, but an all-out safety campaign saved 70 lives.

The United Press count showed that 336 persons died in traffic accidents.

It wasn't close to the 420 predicted by the National Safety Council. The council estimated that the final New Year's death tally would stop at about 350.

Five Killed In Manitoba

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—A New Year's Day two-car collision near St. Pierre, Man., claimed five victims. Three others are "critical".

Traffic accidents and fires claimed 52 lives in Canada during the New Year holiday weekend.
